By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

The Goals Of Our Pilgrimage

In the autumn season, on Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur, no matter how neglectful they may have been during the year, Jews everywhere seek to appear in God's house once more. These fall solemn days constitute today a holy pilgrimage when in Synagogue and Temple we seek inner renewal as did our sires of yore in their pilgrimages to Mount Zion during the three pilgrim festivals. The same spirit which animated our forefathers as they ascended the Holy Mount in Jerusalem animates us of today. Thus we sing with the ancient psalmist, the pilgrim song:

"How lovely are Thy tabernacles,
O Lord of hosts!
My soul yearneth, yea, even pineth
for the courts of the Lord . . .
They go from strength to strength,
Every one of them appeareth before
God in Zion." (Psalm 84)

What we seek as we appear in our holy shrines is that we should go from strength to strength in our aims and goals as we take our pilgrimage through life during the coming year. Rosh Hashonah reminds us that all of us are but pilgrims, that our journey through life can only have significance if it be characterized by moral growth. What then shall be the goals of our pilgrimage so that we may truly find renewal as we enter our shrines on these awesome days of 5712?

In an age of the worship of the machine, our first goal is to seek wisdom. Behold the symbols of our contemporary life! The herkyjerky glittering neon sign which is so symbolic of the constant perpetual movement of our lives, our mechanical lives. Behold the worship of the wheel! From this worship has come the emphasis of the cult of the "know-how." We boast and say that the trouble with the peoples of other lands is that they lack American "know-how."

Now we do not wish to belittle the skill which we of the North American continent have developed in the employment of the machine and in the clever use of our material resources. But cleverness alone does not provide food for the heart and mind in our journey through life. Life, to be satisfying, must have qualities of soul.

What has been the great and classic ideal among Jews throughout our checkered career, if not wisdom that came through the study of Torah? Torah made for spiritual culture and enrichment of soul. It was Mohammed that named us "the people of the book". And because we hugged our holy books, kissed our sacred volumes and truly loved them and above all studied the thinking of the wise sages, ours has ever been the kingdom of the mind. The deep things of life we have ever sought and thus we found life worthwhile.

On Rosh Hashonah 5712, the Jew who will truly be touched by the sublimity of the holy day pilgrimage will wish to resolve to improve his mind during the coming year. His will be a new year resolution to turn to the great classics in world literature and in particular to the three-thousand-year-old "book of books" created by the genius of Israel, and without which civilization is unthinkable.

On our recent visit to Israel, we observed the great hunger there for American "know-how" by which to make the desert fruitful. In this pioneering land the skills are much worshipped. But, accompanied with this hunger, among most of the population in Israel, is still the ideal for growth of soul that is not found, alas, to so large extent in North America. Happily, there are some signs pointing to a deepening of Jewish culture and the average intelligent Jew in Canada and the United States can do much and help by personal dedication to the Jewish ideal of learning and thus give strength to American Jewish life and help build for it a golden age of enlightenment.

Let each one of us, therefore, on this holy day and throughout the days of the new year, ever keep in mind the hallowed words of the psalmist-poet

"The Law of the Lord is perfect, restoring the soul;
The testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple."

Still another goal for which we ought to strive in our pilgrimage, is a development of the understanding heart. The wisest of men, so Scripture relates, wished above all else in life "an understanding heart." Great religion has ever had as one of its major functions the cultivation of the understanding heart. The understanding heart is characterized by the virtue of sympathetic imagination, the ability to put ourselves in places of others and to share their experiences with discerning sympathy. Ezekiel, the prophet, identifying himself with the distressed Jewish exiles in Babylon in order to be of comfort to them, truly had the understanding heart, when he said, "I sat where they sat."

Despite that ours is a revolutionary age in economics and despite the changes that have come and are yet bound to come under our system of free enterprise we still highly regard personal success. It is an ideal cherished by most of us and we yearn to go from strength to strength in our financial accumulations. But financial and business achievements are insignificant in themselves to help give enrichment to life. Unless successful men add to their success, the understanding heart, their lives can only result in failure. Is it not often true that financial successful people become callous of heart? It is splendid to be a successful merchant prince when added with it is a sense of humanity. For when one makes his exit from this world and the minister of religion is called upon to measure that life what does the teacher of religion usually speak about? Is it not about a man's heart value? Surely, in eulogizing the departed we do not give emphasis to a man's material possessions. The ultimate measure of life has to do with the spiritual.

Our visit to God's house on this day should remind us that we can only go from strength to strength when we realize that we are but stewards of whatever we possess and that our possessions constitute a loan. If only men would be aware of all this. How much fairer would they be then in the arena of the competitive world in their daily dealings with fellow man. How fitting the prayer included in the Reform Ritual for Yom Kippur afternoon is in this regard.

"Our forefathers have always been deeply concerned about the hardships of those that fall. Our prophets and sages have warned us that wealth and the possession of power tend to make

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without reason
That so what it cost me to be true,
I might have had an easier."

Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, is the one holy day of the year which in the Jewish view unites all the peoples of the earth. It is the great day when not only the Jews but all the inhabitants of the world pass in judgment before the Lord as sheep pass before their shepherd. This quiet assumption that borders, barriers, and boundaries are nothing more than artificial creations before the golden dream of One World has remained indestructible through barbarian ages and historical changes in leaders, policies, and secret weapons. With the Jews it is ancient history, the culmination of other dreams about man's treatment of man which form the basis of civilization today. Made of the intangible substance of the spirit, it is unbreakable and unchangeable and holds out to mankind its only hope of survival.

The Jews of today have seen the failure of Western civilization due to its failure to establish social justice and peace. Six million of their number were destroyed by a horror which peeled back from a major world power the thin top skin of the sub-human monster, revealing dark and fearful depths that seeped to the surface, staining the soil and causing men to recoil as from black magic. Say that thousands of Jews were saved. This was nothing compared with the number destroyed. International morality was at low ebb. Crimes against the Jews were ignored for shameful lack of decency and thus Western civilization lent itself to partnership in the vilest crime. What happened to fine belief in such things as the sanctity of the individual, tolerance, brotherhood, equality, liberty, justice, the main ideas which Western civilization had received from the Jews?

In an age of justifiable pessimism, tensions, cynicism, and fears, when enthusiasm on the part of any section for such an ideal as a better world order would be surprising, the Jews have faced with heroic quality the facts of their terrible group experience at the hands of a brutalized people. They still require signs that human brotherhood is something more than words suitable for churchmen's resolutions. They must still seek justice. By the treatment accorded the Jews the civilized countries, statesmen, and institutions can tell what their own moral health is like, as usual. One thing the Jews know with certainty and that is that the world needs the Jewish contribution more than it ever did before to keep it from retreating into the wells of barbarism. The Jews emerged in the past little while as once again superior to the armed-hearted who feared or neglected to speak up for them, as well as to those who made murder and sadism their closest allies. For it was the others who forsook their fellow-humans and others who flung them about the surface of the globe like a mad game coming in the mouth. The Jews were only the victims. They are nevertheless clearer.

Even in the Warsaw Ghetto the Jews resisted demoralization. Even when food was low and people were dying left and right, children were being taught out of books just as though their future was assured and there were things they would need to know. This is something for Jewries in more fortunate lands to recall at times like these when the heart is troubled and the spirit falters over the state of the world, and the mind questions the future. The sustaining thing is the long-ingrained faith that in the end what is right and just prevails and what is evil and wrong can not endure. The Jewish group is too old in history and too modest with a sense of destiny to lose faith in the validity of what it has given to the world. The continued sickness of society never seems but what it requires for heart and soul is continued tonings of the same remedies out of very old bottles.

Western civilization has shown that the time has not yet arrived when it can claim to be in full custody of the Jewish moral contribution. It is idle to talk about universal peace as an ideal but is being pursued at the moment by the Christian world. As for equality and social justice also ancient Jewish teaching, the concerned, for millions there is inequality and social injustice a close and constant proximity to pomp and privilege. It is too soon or the Jews to release the ideal of brotherhood into Christian hands. The state of the world today is directly attributable to the failure of society to apply the elementary lessons which the teachings of Judaism provide, preferring instead repeated recourse to the Gentile short cut of war. These teachings were valid, they are valid. Through them the Jew is a moral mover, progress, freedom, and liberty. In them Jewry has work to do which does not depend upon numbers but upon ideas and ideals.

Let the Jews be fortified to stick to purposes and adhere to causes that make for the welfare of all mankind. If they have any special task it is to hope and strive for a better world and to be the constant agent which compels the rest of humanity to put into practice those ideas that look toward social betterment. Isaiah dreamed of a golden age in times that were also chaotic, warlike, and cruel, like these times. It was not to be a golden age for Israel alone: "It shall come to pass in the end of days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established as the highest mountain, and shall be exalted above the hills. All the nations shall flow to it."

WHAT SHALL WE CELEBRATE?

BY DR. SOLOMON GRAYZEL, EDITOR OF THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA

The great celebration is little more than two years off. The year 1954 will mark the three-hundredth anniversary of the landing of the first group of Jews on soil destined to form part of the United States. American Jewry cannot and must not neglect the occasion; several American Jewish organizations, the Jewish Historical Society in the lead, have already begun to discuss the nature and extent of the celebration. The time has come for the community as a whole to take an interest in the subject. It is here suggested that the Jewish community begin by asking itself the question, Just what shall we be celebrating?

The historical event itself is of interest, but of no great consequence. Groups more numerous and at the time more important than the twenty-four Jewish men and women had come and were destined to come to these shores. A seed is important only because it is the grandparent of the fruit one eats; an event in the past is important only because it served as the starting point for a situation in which one finds himself. What we celebrate in 1954 will not be so much the landing of a small group of Jews, but the fact that these descendants of the ancient people and believers in the God of Israel were the first in a vast movement of population and the beginners of another experiment in spiritual survival and growth. The celebration will be pointless, therefore, unless it serves to evaluate this experiment, unless we — and to some extent our non-Jewish neighbors — are able to draw from it deeper understanding of our past, greater fortitude in our present, and profounder faith in the future of Jewish life in the United States.

Obviously the celebration will in very considerable measure take the form of a tribute to the spirit of Americanism. Jewish experience has always and everywhere been a test of the civilization surrounding a Jewish community, even as the nature of the growth and change within that community's Judaism has been the test of its spiritual powers. Compared with Jewish fate in most other Diaspora lands, our experience in this country has been the best possible illustration of America's love of freedom and regard for individual worth. It is only in the last generation or two that antisemitism, largely a European importation, has had to be taken seriously. Before that, while there were Peter Stuyvesants at all times, victory over them was comparatively easy because at heart American institutions were pure. The present size of the American Jewish community, its political status and its economic opportunities, while due to many causes, are a direct result of Americanism. When we celebrate the tercentenary, therefore, we shall be acknowledging our debt to American democracy, dedicating ourselves to its perpetuation and, let us hope, along with the majority of Christians to whom Americanism is dear, pledging ourselves to a continuous struggle against bigotry, coercion, and religious and economic reaction.

It will be desirable also to point to the part played by Jews in the growth of American civilization. In view of the threatening clouds on our horizon, even in America, it would be false modesty for us to remain silent about Jewish participation in the economic, political, and cultural activity as a result of which America became a great and happy land. We must, of course, be cognizant of the fact that such cooperation was given by individuals as Americans, not as Jews. Nonetheless, it would be as unwise to claim too little as it would be foolish to claim too much. For Jewish experience in America has provided evidence of still another constant in the history of our people, namely, that the influence of Jews has been predominantly on the constructive side of life and almost invariably characterized by social consciousness.

When all this has been said with the proper modesty and thankfulness, the second part of the question will still remain unanswered: What have we, the Jews of America, achieved within the past three hundred years that might make us worthy to take our place alongside of the other Jewish communities of the past? How have we added to the strength of the Jewish people and the depth of Jewish life?

We can, to be sure, point to an unselfish use of wealth. Apart from the liberality of the American Jew to any cause within the country, whether generally American or specifically Jewish, he has responded magnificently to calls that have come from the outside

It is not too much to say that, without the aid of the American Jew, Jewish life in Europe in the past generation would have been immensely more difficult and Israel would have had a much harder time in solving its numerous problems. Jews have a record for charitableness, but nothing in the past has equalled the achievement of American Jewry in this regard.

In another area of life as Jews, that of formal religion, the American Jew has also risen to the demands made upon him. The tiny synagogues of early years, the Minyanim in back alleys and the chaotic congregational life of a century ago have given place to dignified houses of worship and to the well-run organizations behind them. Judaism as a form of worshipping God has made great strides in the past three centuries.

What we do not know, and cannot very well evaluate, is the extent to which such liberality and organization indicate spiritual sensitivity and religious loyalty alone can guarantee leadership, or, at least, dignified survival. For, unless a religiously identifiable minority can justify its distinctiveness to itself, if not to others, its position cannot long remain tenable. Yet it is exactly in this respect that American Jewry has not enough to show for its three hundred years of existence. It is exactly on this point that the celebration will have to cease being self-congratulatory and become self-examining.

We have failed to gain the necessary strength in three areas of life: education, culture, and religious thought. Perhaps the three are one; they are certainly interdependent. Anyone of them, properly developed within the community, would have brought progress in the others. They are here mentioned separately only because some groups within the Jewish community may deny the transcendent importance of one or another of them.

Not that American Jewry failed to make efforts to strengthen the life of its spirit. The fact that a complete history of these efforts has not been written is in itself an indication of spiritual backwardness, and the preparation of such a volume should be an integral part of the forthcoming celebration. When it appears, it will make crystal clear that from the very beginning the Jews who came to settle here were concerned about their own children's Judaism. They made valiant efforts to import teachers and to establish schools. Every type of Jewish education was tried in the small Jewish community of the United States during the first century and a half of its existence, from private instruction to all-day schooling.

To a lesser extent efforts in the field of Jewish cultural life were also not lacking, although the concept of culture apart from religion had not yet been born. Isaac Leeser and his colleagues in the establishment of the first American Jewish Publication Society, in 1848, were probably not the first to deplore the lack of a cultured Jewish laity, and they certainly were not the last. As to religious thought, in the early years the community completely lacked profound and learned leadership. Then came the era of the great debate between Orthodoxy and Reform, when the religious forces in the Jewish community exhausted themselves and their listeners in a more or less arid disputation about ceremonials.

The rabbinic leaders of that day were, generally speaking, inspired debaters without being inspiring religious teachers. There were exceptions, of course, men of noble life and great scholarship; but their voices were drowned out in the turbulence of the age and they did not have that philosophical grasp which the situation called for. Although great progress has been made in all these areas in the last fifty years, basically we who will be celebrating the tercentenary are struggling under the burden of failure accumulated during the first century and a half.

NESCAFE
*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered trade mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to designate its soluble coffee product which is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added pure carbohydrates (dextrins, maltose and dextrose) added solely to protect the flavor.

It is not difficult to explain the failures of the past; there are plenty of extenuating circumstances. Let no one underestimate the difficulties of physical settlement and adjustment by successive generations of immigrants. There was literally no time for the acquisition of that degree of information which is essential for growth in Judaism. It takes no great flight of the imagination to recognize the tragedy inherent in the fact that so few good teachers migrated to the United States. It is obvious that the Jews of the United States, in view of the differences in their Americanization status and backgrounds, could not attain that type of community organization which might have done much to solve their cultural and religious problems.

By the time such organization became possible, early in the twentieth century, most of the energies which might have gone into cultural growth had to be diverted to foreign relief. One recalls with a sense of frustration that Louis Marshall, Cyrus Adler, and their colleagues planned to turn the machinery which had been used for the raising of relief moneys during and after World War I to the organization and guidance of Jewish educational projects. Subsequent events in the world turned this hopeful plan into one of history's tragic "ifs."

There are still other reasons why we need not assume full blame for the existing situation. We speak nostalgically of the spiritual maturity of other Jewish communities in the past without realising how long it had taken those Jewries to attain that state. Babylonia, Spain, the Rhineland, Poland had Jewish communities which on their tercentenary were no farther advanced than we, sometimes not as far. If they lived in ages when everything was accomplished at a slower tempo, they had the great advantage of being surrounded by an environment more favorable to religious culture than we had in the 19th century, the most important period for American Jewish development. Continuity, the building up of a tradition appears to be an exceedingly important factor in such a situation.

Neither French nor British Jewry, which in their present form are about the same age as that of the United States, has made much of a contribution to the totality of Jewish culture in the past one hundred and fifty years. German Jewry has done considerably more. But that Jewish community had the advantage of an uninterrupted cultural tradition. Perhaps because of this, it alone of all western Jewries, produced a number of profound and stimulating workers in the field of living Judaism.

All these Jewish communities, moreover, including that of the United States, have been deeply influenced by new ideological currents and by the non-religious values which swayed the minds of men in the 19th and early 20th centuries. East-European Jewish life was lived largely in a different environment and bore the fruit of a different tradition whose roots had been implanted at an earlier time; it offers no parallel to our situation.

All these considerations may explain the past, but can offer no excuse for the future. It can escape no one that American Jewish life is now at the crossroads. Signs

A FAMOUS SCIENTIST COMES HOME

BY MARCIA GITLIN, OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY, IN ISRAEL

Allan Bronfman, of Montreal, national president of the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University, says: "A Jew inevitably bethinks himself on the New Year, 'What is there to be for me and mine in the year and years ahead?' One of our number found his answer; I trust the following dramatic sketch by Marcia Gitlin of the Hebrew University will touch you deeply, as it did me."

When in 1933 the world rang with the names of the great Jewish writers, philosophers, scientists and artists who were compelled to leave Germany, conjecture was rife as to where each of them would go. Before most of them lay a variety of alternatives. They could find asylum almost anywhere they wished. For the world had not yet grown cynical about suffering and it had still to introduce those immigration restrictions which were to spell despair to the homeless and oppressed. Many of Germany's most illustrious refugees were warmly, sometimes even enthusiastically, invited to start life anew in various countries, were given the opportunity of continuing their work in some of the greatest universities of the world. Each had his own reasons for the choice he eventually made.

Bernhard Zondek, too, could have gone to any country he liked. Still in his early forties, he had already for years been an international figure in the world of medicine. He had leapt into fame in 1926 with his discovery of the female sex hormone and the gonadotropic hormones, followed by the development of the Aschheim-Zondek pregnancy test. By 1933 there was not a scientist, not a doctor, not even a medical student who was unfamiliar with his name. When the Nazis came to power he was immediately invited by some of the most notable universities abroad to join their research and teaching staffs.

Yet Zondek chose to come to Palestine. Of all the invitations he received, there was one, apparently, which he preferred above the others. It was from Dr. J. L. Magnes, and it was extended to him in Magnes' capacity as Chancellor of what was probably the smallest as well as the most humble university in the world. The Hebrew University was then only eight years old. It was poor in means and equipment. The Medical School, which would naturally be Zondek's principal interest, was still only a vision, although the nucleus of it was already in existence in the form of three medical departments. To all appearances there was every reason why a great scientist, with the choice of the whole world before him and the best conditions of work, should not come to Jerusalem. Yet Zondek came.

If you ask him today why he came he will tell you, "Yesterday a German professor", he says with a shrug of his shoulders, "today an English professor, tomorrow an American professor. Far better that I should come to Palestine and live as a Jew where I belong."

In a sense, of course, he was fortunate. He was a scientist, and as long as he had more or less suitable quarters and adequate equipment he could find satisfaction in his work. He did not, therefore, suffer the unhappy

THE NEW YEAR MARKS A CHANGE IN THE HEART OF MAN

BY RABBI MENDELL LEWITTES, OF YOUNG ISRAEL OF MONTREAL

The ministering angels assemble before the Holy One, blessed be He, and inquire, "When does Rosh Hashanah occur?" And God replies, "Why ask me! Let us descend together to the court of man below and find out." (Midrash).

The date set for Rosh Hashanah does not commemorate any particular event in our history, nor does it mark any change in the seasons, as do the other festivals in Jewish life. It is designed to mark a change in the heart of man, an event which may eventually have an historic significance but is hardly discernible at the time it occurs. Such an event is not in the hands of God, but in the hands of man. Man is morally free, he makes the choice between good and evil, he determines whether Rosh Hashanah will actually mark the beginning of a new and better way of life or not.

Modern psychology has taught a great deal about the influence of heredity and environment upon a person's behavior; but in emphasizing the external factors that motivate man's conduct it has tended to obscure the moral responsibility of the person himself for his acts of commision and omission. Judaism emphasizes, especially at this season of the year, the internal factors, such as greed and false pride and envy, which can be controlled by man himself regardless of his environment.

The Midrash speaks of "the court below". Every man, in a sense, is a judge, judging his own life and his own actions. If we investigate carefully and honestly, if we probe our own souls and examine our motives closely, we can arrive at a true judgment of ourselves. And while, on Rosh Hashanah, we usually think of God as the Supreme Judge sitting upon the throne of judgment, we must also remember the mundane court that each soul harbors within itself. The decision of this court will, in the final analysis, determine the decision of the court on high.

May the old year end with its curses; may the new year begin with its blessings. (Machsor).

Rare is the individual who escapes completely the seemingly cruel barbs of fate and who cannot utter in all sincerity the above-quoted prayer. Each year brings its share of unhappiness and tragic events; and each year we look forward to a happier future. Without our faith in a Kind Providence to bestow upon us the blessings of joy and health for ourselves and our dear ones it would be most difficult for us to bear the burden of our grief. Rosh Hashanah speaks of a stern God of justice, but Yom Kippur reminds us that He is a God of mercy and forgiveness, ready to bless His children with a good year.

We do not live only as isolated individuals, however. We share the fate of the society in which we live. And as members of this society we can utter the prayer with increased fervor this year. The blight and the curse which has hovered over us in the old year is the increasing tension in world affairs and the consequent increasing threat of global war. During the year 5711 the pace of rearmament on both sides of the Iron Curtain has been accelerated. The Korean conflict has continued indecisively, with a mounting list of casualties, reflecting the indecisiveness of world politics. Suspicion and misunderstanding between East and West is so great as to make every rapprochement to peace well nigh impossible.

The effect of this state of affairs upon the ordinary man in the street has been most disturbing. The increasing production of weapons for war has augmented the inflationary spiral. The cost of living has risen to new heights and the burden of taxation has become more heavy. The average wage earner has found it more and more difficult to provide adequately for his family. The tenseness in the atmosphere, the constant reference to atomic bombs, the hysteria of many politicians are all leading to a diminishing of personal freedom and the feeling of security. The effect upon our young people has been equally disastrous. The uncertainty of our times, the grim possibility that they may be whisked away to war, has made it hard for young people to plan their education and careers, and, what is even more discouraging, has made it hard for them to put their faith in the ideals preached by religion.

Certainly we must pray, "May the old year with its curses vanish; and may the New Year bring with it the long-awaited reconciliation of mankind, when all the nations of the world will make one union to do the will of God with a perfect heart."

"In the seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall be a solemn rest unto you, a memorial proclaimed with the blast of horns." (Leviticus 23:24).

The focal ceremony of our Rosh Hashanah celebration is the blowing of the shofar. It is the summons to a new and better way of life. Our sages remark that the blowing of the shofar is, "Chochmo vesyno Melocho," a skill and not a job. It is the plan for the work, but not the work itself. Blowing the shofar of itself, and with it the celebration of the New Year, does not constitute our whole task. Rather, it is the arousing to the necessity of doing a job and assuming a task. No blueprint of itself built a building; no plan, no matter how well devised, created a real entity.

Similarly, the going to the synagogue on Rosh Hashanah and hearing the sounds of the shofar did not create the better person, the nobler individual. They are the stimuli and the guide, to impel us forward and upward as we leave the synagogue and return to our normal pursuits. The inspiration of the Holy Days of Awe, if it is to have any meaning, must be translated into a more sincere faith and piety, a more active life on behalf of peace and human welfare, a firmer devotion to the tenets of the Torah.

It is customary to go to a stream on the first day of Rosh Hashanah and recite there the verse: "And thou shalt cast (Tashlich) in the depths of the sea all our sins." (Shulchan Aruch).

This quaint custom of Tashlich has a twofold significance, one for each individual and one for the people as a whole. Going down to the bank of the river and looking in the water, we see a reflection of ourselves, thus being reminded of the necessity at this time of the year for self-examination and

THIS YEAR FOR CERTAIN

BY RABBI NORMAN N. SHAPIRO, OF GOEL TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO

Each year the time approaches for introspection, and a certain amount of mental exercises as the High Holy Day period rolls around. We look behind us in amazement that the year fled by with the speed it did, and we don't recall all the things that we had so easily promised ourselves to do before "next year". Many things have been left undone, many changes have been left unmade, and many promises unfulfilled. Why is it that the summer holidays look so far away and then suddenly it's September?

From my summer I feel replenished by the study and research that I found time for. From my discussions with great Rabbinical minds I gain strength and purpose. As you look to your spiritual leader to point the way for your future spiritual health so does your spiritual leader drink at the reservoirs of knowledge afforded by the greatest Jewish and non-Jewish minds available. What plans for the coming year? Where to go is not the question. Put everything in the background except the most important spiritual question of them all. How to live? Can we not turn the clock back a little, and review all the lost golden days and well intentioned ideas, and perhaps put them on the head of the list for this year's agenda?

I would say, let us begin with the case history of the average family and see what happened to make these things fall into the limbo of all other things that are easy to forget. But there really is no average family when it comes to Judaism. Mind, I did not say Jews, I say Judaism. Therefore we will begin with "a family".

I say to the father, the head of the family, the provider: Did you provide one day a week to attend the Synagogue as you planned? What interfered so that when it couldn't be one day, it just couldn't be once a month? You had decided to bring the children with you to witness services, now that they are of an age. When you couldn't go did it devolve upon the mother to rent the family?

What about those fairly infrequent lectures by well-known Jewish thinkers that you wanted to attend so badly? Were you too tired to make the sacrifice of leaving the warm house shortly after dinner? Did you have to be told that the lecture was of extreme benefit to all who attended and did you not feel a momentary pang of conscience for your neglect? Well, next year for sure. That assuages your feelings for a while, and as a year rolls by, so do ten years flash past and you just never did take in the things that Jewishly you felt you should.

Are you a passive member of your Jewish organizations? What of the Zionist Organizations and Bnai Brith? And your synagogue affiliations with the men's groups? Did your year drift by until the approach of the season now forcibly brings home the fact that it could be any year that you have made the same promises?

Now for the mother: With all due respect to the husband, it is well known that within the home the mother sets the pace. She is the one who can foster and stimulate interest in almost any field which includes the family. It is a fact that if the mother is too tired to go that Dad would just as soon stay home rather than go alone or take the children. Do you remember just a few short months ago? You said to yourself during the High Holiday services, when the children commented on the beauty and grandeur of the Kol Nidre, that you would see to it that they attended either the children's service or even the service in the main sanctuary as long as they had shown such an interest and feeling for what they had witnessed.

What happened the day of the Simchas Torah party? Were they there? Did they join in the Purim masquerade? Were they present at the Chanukah festivities? Did you enroll your youngest in Sunday School as you had planned? Do you remember the day one of the girls called you about the Sisterhood meeting? Where were you when Hadassah sent out its call? Or let us go back to the invitation from the Council of Jewish Women that you put on your desk in order to try and remember that they had an unusually excellent speaker in town. When your niece was confirmed, did you all alleviate an obligation by sending a gift and letting it go at that, or did you go to the confirmation exercises and suddenly realize what a tremendous force the Synagogue and the Hebrew School can be in the life of a well-adjusted young adolescent?

So, with father, you whisper: Next year for certain. I will not neglect these things because the year grows more important as the

THE NEW JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE OF TORONTO

BY LOUIS BORSOOK, PRESIDENT

Many groups will be a part of the Jewish Community Centre when it will be located in the new building at Bloor Street and Spadina Avenue, in Toronto. Designed and constructed to serve ten thousand men, women and youth, the Centre will meet the expressed needs of the entire community. A large survey committee studied the program and service requirements of Toronto Jewry for many months. During that period, hundreds of questionnaires were gathered and analyzed, dozens of Jewish organizations were visited and their membership interviewed. Population trends were charted and existing centres in other communities were examined.

As a result of this study and planning, the building will be entirely functional. An example is the provisions being made for basketball. The court in the new building has been planned to meet the requirements of senior basketball with space for one thousand spectators.

Jewish organizations need accommodations for dinners and large meetings. The new auditorium has been designed to accommodate dinner meetings of four hundred people, with a large, well-equipped kosher kitchen adjoining it. According to the study, hundreds of Toronto Jews want to participate in dramatic activity. Last year, the Y dramatic group staged a short play every second week. The new centre will have a professionally designed stage, a workshop for the building of scenery and the assembling of costumes, and the most modern lighting facilities. The theatre will seat seven hundred, and will also have a movie projection room and complete sound broadcasting equipment.

There are thousands of teen-agers, boys and girls who want to belong to social clubs meeting in pleasant environment, with trained leadership. The new centre will have club rooms, attractively decorated, well-equipped to accommodate these groups. A teen-age lounge will be provided. Hundreds of business men want facilities to exercise quickly, have a massage and steam bath, and a quick lunch during the day. A modern health club will be provided with wet and dry steam baths, showers, drying rooms, sun-ray lamps, exercise and massage facilities. In addition, there will be a snack bar to serve lunches as well as other meals.

For the swimmers and for the thousands who will learn to swim, there will be a large pool, A.A.U. regulation size, with diving board, underwater lighting, and spectator space for four hundred persons. For the elderly there will be spacious rooms on the street level for movies, singing, dancing, arts and crafts and discussion groups, and social meetings. For children of nursery school age there are school rooms opening on an outer court for open air play. The photography enthusiast, the person who dabbles with paint and clay, the creative person who works with metal or leather, the worker in wool, all will have equipment and space to satisfy their creative urges.

Toronto has not only provided funds, through the Combined Building Fund Campaign, and the genius for building properly but is now actively engaged through committees, numbering of individuals, in planning the detail, staff, and program which will make the new centre hum with activity. It is anticipated that this new centre, serving thousands of individuals weekly from the nursery school child to the elderly, will have a great influence in Toronto Jewish life. It will be a meeting place and the home of the community. It will be a Jewish cultural force and above all, will develop youth and create leadership, unity, and strength so needed urgently in these trying times.

The Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

time goes on, and as the limbs of our infants lengthen into childhood and young man and womanhood. Next year for sure."

And you, big brother: Did you fail to attend the teen-agers club at the Synagogue because the first meeting seemed a little unorganized? If you had stuck it out it would have been well worth while because friendships that are formed in groups of this nature are likely to become lifelong and important. What about the meetings of the fellows who had been bar-mitzvah? How regular was your attendance at the Hebrew School? Did you stop right after you had been bar-mitzvah? Did you join any of the youth groups so ably provided for you by the experienced and capable directors? Did you lose interest, too, right after the High Holy Day Services that impressed you so much? "Next year for certain. When Mum and Dad get around to it, too. Next year for certain."

What about little sister? There is a wonderful Jewish nursery school. She is just the right age, or will you wait until she is old enough to go to a secular school and promise yourself then that she will attend Hebrew School to make up for it? Did you light your Shabbat candles? Were the Holidays during the year set aside? Who presided over your Seder table? There are so many ways in which we can maintain Judaism right on the home territory. Next year for certain.

It is now next year. It is now tomorrow. I bring these things before you as a sort of a mental calendar to chart your course with. Plan your future with them. They are commodities that really pay off. May God bless your efforts and plans with fruition. This year for certain.

About Jewish Art And Jewish Artists In Montreal

BY LOUIS MUHLSTOCK

If by Jewish art we mean works of art created by Jewish artists then we have Jewish art. If, on the other hand, Jewish art implies subject matter typically Jewish, Jewish folklore, Jewish legends, scenes from the Bible, Jewish families celebrating their religious festivals and ceremonies, then no Jewish art is being produced by our painters.

About a year ago, Yosal Bergner, a young Polish-born artist (now settled in Israel), exhibited a huge room full of Jewish themes. There was much enthusiasm and very excellent press reviews in the Jewish, English, and French press, but the response financially was not what one could call encouraging. Illustrations to stories by Peretz — anecdotes of Chelem — scenes and types from the Polish Ghetto were not what those of our people with means want in their "Period" furnished living-rooms. Jewish themes no longer seem to belong in homes owned by our Jewish people. "It won't fit", is what they say. And I say this from personal experience.

Often I sensed genuine admiration on the part of onlookers when they came upon a drawing of a bearded old man, but the desire to satisfy the wall and furniture came first. According to her (and she usually makes the choice and final decision) it would not go with the French end-tables. The dining-room had to have a still-life. It might go with the den, but they were not yet prepared to decorate the den. What they really were looking for was some sentimental 19th century salon type "conversation piece".

The final selection is usually a landscape or still-life. And this is what the majority of our artists (with the exception of a very limited few) paint. From time to time, there is a request for a portrait of either the wife or of a child.

Generally speaking, there are a few full-time painters in Canada and even less Jewish artists. Those who have to provide for a family cannot live on the sale of their works alone. Many, and amongst them most capable painters, have to do other work "to make ends meet". Many have to set painting aside for what leisure hours they can create. Naturally they suffer and their painting suffers. On the whole, they are all very serious about their work.

Many have had extensive training here and abroad. Many are already recognized and contribute regularly to the annual society exhibitions to which they belong as members or to which they are invited to show. A number of them are represented in the country's public and private collections. And many will eventually make important contributions to Canadian art. But it will be as Canadians. A number of our better-known Montreal Jewish painters devote a good deal of their time teaching art in public institutions throughout the city.

Since space does not permit a critical evaluation of the contributions our own artists have already made and are making daily, I should at least like to mention the names of those who have and are contributing to Canadian Exhibitions here and elsewhere in our country. Some are better-known than others, some with better training, some almost entirely self-taught, but all approaching their work with great love and seriousness.

These are the names: the late Alexsandre Bercovitch, Eric Goldberg, Regina Seiden, Heimlich, Neumann, Borenstein, Jack Beder, Ghitta Caiserman, Alfred Pinsky, Moe Reinblatt, Marion Aronson, Fanny and Rose Wiselberg, Mrs. Emma Frankenberg, Anne Kahane, Margaret Fainmel, Betty Sutherland, Harry Mayerovitch, Norman Leibovitch, Ludwig Flancer, Anita Elkin, Prezament, Rita Briansky, Sylvia Ary, Sheinbloom, Hattie Lightstone, Malchi, Gunther Heyman, Meyer Ryshpan, Joseph Sher, Bernard Mayman, Anne Greenstein and Saul Field.

It is only to be hoped that with the influx into Canada of the last remnants of our surviving people in Europe, that there will be a revival of things Jewish which will in turn find expression in the work of our artists.

IN ONE YEAR...

Three Great Achievements by a Great Agency!

In the past 12 months, the members of the IRVING RIDDELL agency have added three new attainments to their already distinguished record:

- For the calendar year 1950, they led all of the Company's Ordinary Branch agencies in the production of business with the highest volume ever written by any London Life Ordinary agency.
- In the annual June contest, in which all London Life Ordinary agencies compete, they surpassed all other offices for the eighth successive year, with a new campaign record total of over $1,600,000.
- All members of the agency qualified for the Company's Honor Club, and all but one, who had been with the agency for only one-quarter of the Club year, attained MASTER MEMBERSHIP.

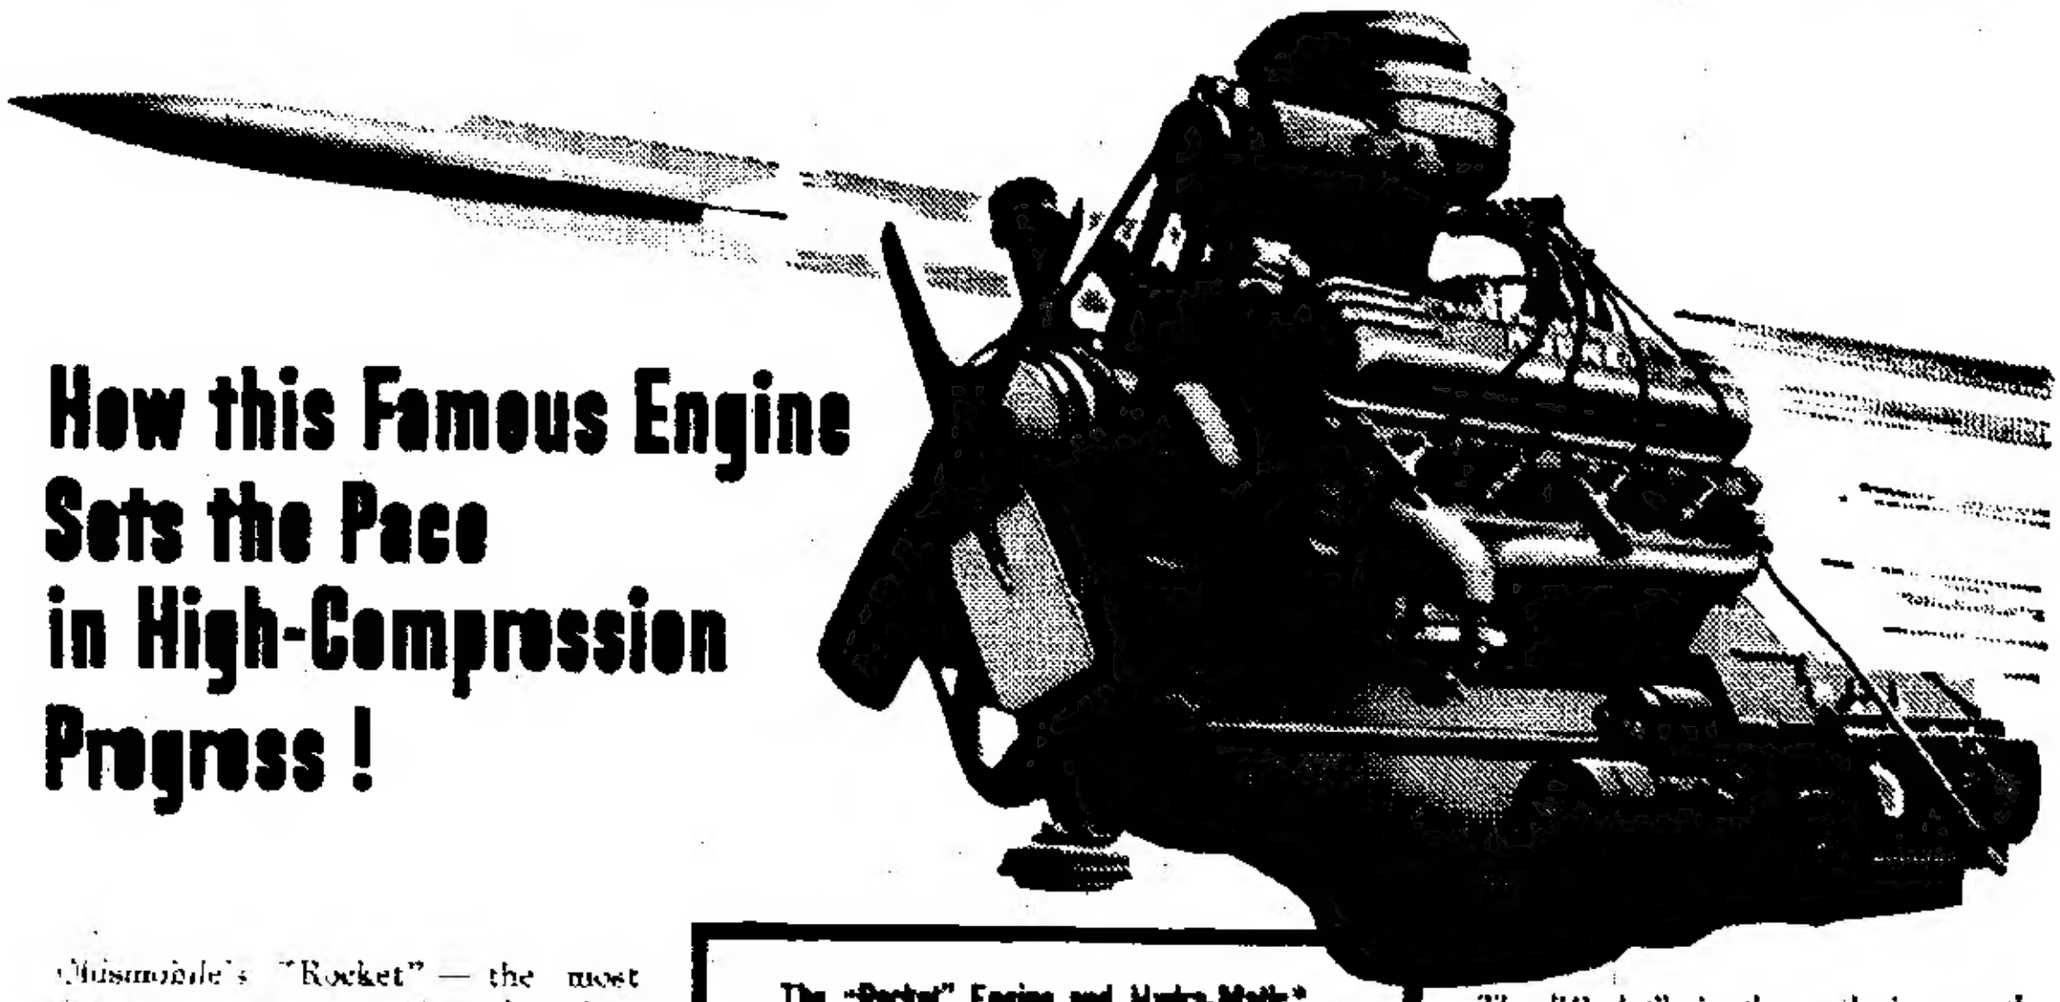
OLDSMOBILE'S "ROCKET"



How this Famous Engine Sets the Pace in High-Compression Progress!

Oldsmobile's "Rocket" — the most famous automotive engine of modern times — is now in its third triumphant year. Designed from the crankshaft out for true high-compression performance and economy, the "Rocket" incorporates such outstanding new features as overhead valve, V-type design, a short, rigid 5-bearing crankshaft, hydraulic valve lifters—and many, many more!

For 1951, the new high-turbulence combustion chamber and carburetor give greater gas savings, a new distributor means even more efficient high-compression operation.

The new "Rocket" Engine has become the most-talked-about power unit in Canada! That's why the striking "Rocket" symbol on the hood of the Oldsmobile "88" or "98" marks it as one of the world's most advanced motor cars.

The "Rocket" Engine and Hydra-Matic*—

AN UNBEATABLE PARTNERSHIP!

Fully proved — constantly improved — Hydra-Matic still leads the way! Back in 1939, Oldsmobile pioneered Hydra-Matic, the first fully automatic transmission. Since then, advancement after advancement has been built into Hydra-Matic, culminating in the 1951 version with Instant Reverse.

Today, when you get behind the wheel of a "Rocket" powered Hydra-Matic Oldsmobile, you experience a superlatively smooth drive . . . a no-clutch drive that gives you positive response. That's because Hydra-Matic is the perfect partner for "Rocket" Engine Power! It's a team that puts the "Rocket" Oldsmobile years ahead—and puts Oldsmobile owners years ahead, too. See your Oldsmobile dealer!

*Hydra-Matic Drive is optional at extra cost

The "Rocket" is the peak in smooth, flashing, economical power! New combustion chamber design for greater gas savings—new extra size carburetor—extra large intake valves—new starting motor and damp-proof wiring harness—new air cleaner and intake silencer—short, rigid 5-bearing crankshaft—hydraulic valve lifters—auto-thermic pistons.

"Rocket" Means Performance!
The "Rocket", first of all, is famous for its eager power! It has proven itself a performance leader on hills and highways, over boulevards and backroads all across the country.

"Rocket" Means Economy!
Operating on gas available everywhere today, the "Rocket" will give more "go" on less gas. Its high-compression gas-saving qualities continue to amaze new Oldsmobile owners.

"Rocket" Means Durability!
A "Rocket 88" Oldsmobile took first place in the gruelling Mexican Durability Run. The "Rocket" can truly stand on its record for outstanding dependability plus rugged durability.

"Rocket" Means Oldsmobile!
The "Rocket" engine is only part of Oldsmobile's leadership in every phase of motor car manufacture. See and drive "Rocket" Engine Oldsmobile—the all-time great Super "88" or the glamorous "98".

GET RID OF YOUR OLD OIL GLUTTON

REPLACE IT WITH AN

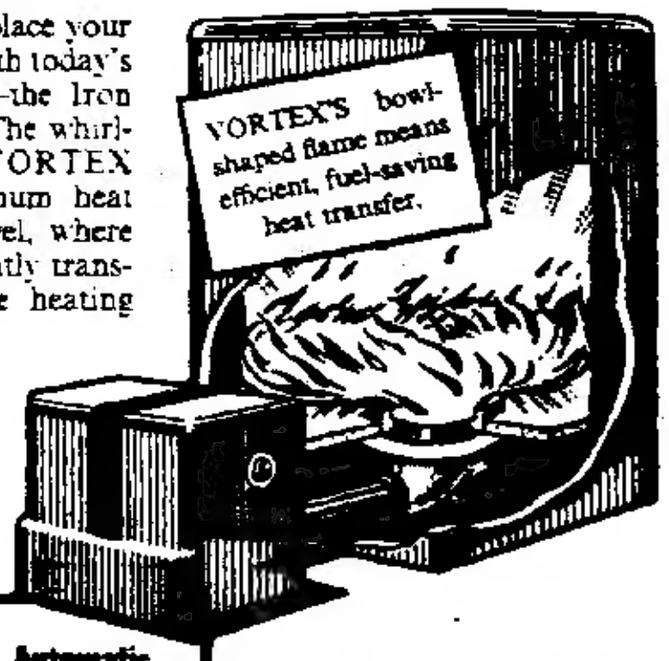
IRON FIREMAN

Vortex OIL BURNER

Saves up to 30% of your fuel!

A new type, bowl-shaped flame reduces fuel-wasting heat losses

Now's the time to replace your old-style oil burner with today's finest post-war unit—the Iron Fireman VORTEX. The whirling, bowl-shaped VORTEX flame releases maximum heat right at grate-line level, where it can be most efficiently transferred into the home heating system. Heat loss is cut to a minimum, and the extra heat saved cuts oil bills as much as 30%.



IRON FIREMAN Automatic Furnaces and Boilers with built-in VORTEX oil burners

These complete oil heating units are perfectly adaptable to all three types of home heating systems — warm air, steam or hot water. Their heating surfaces are specially designed to utilize fully the rich heat produced by the VORTEX Radiant Flame.

Guaranteed Performance
Your Iron Fireman dealer will test your present oil burner free and determine the increased efficiency you will get with an Iron Fireman Vortex. You can have this figure stipulated in a written guarantee when you install your Iron Fireman.

Replace your old oil burner with a fuel saving

IRON FIREMAN VORTEX OIL BURNER

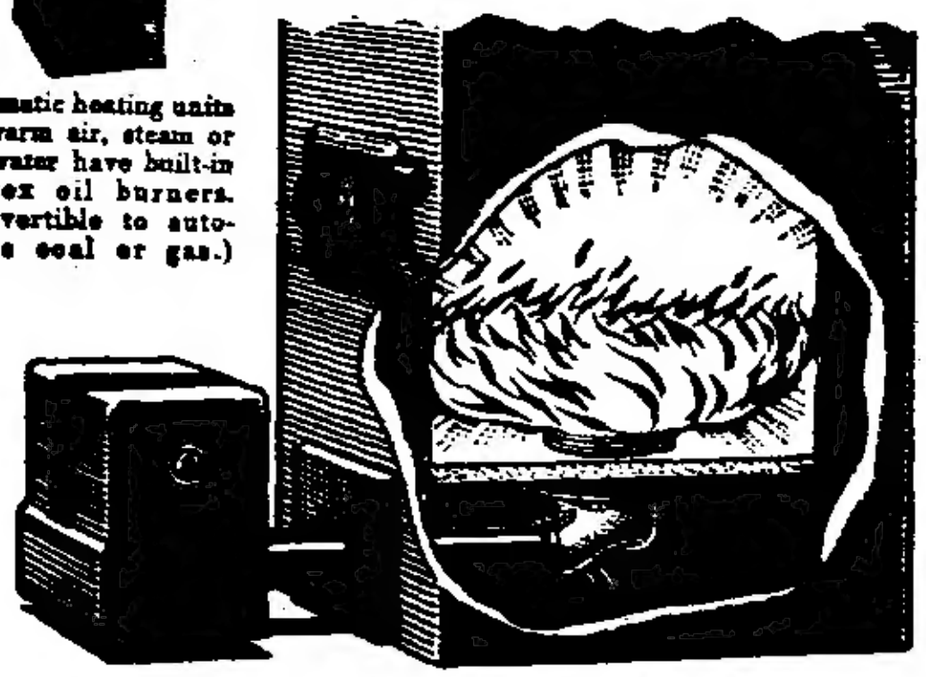
There's a lot more heat in fuel oil than your old-style burner can get out of it. The Iron Fireman Vortex delivers those extra heat units, and when you see it in action you can readily understand why. Its whirling vortex of intense radiant flame is different from any other oil fire. It is shaped like a bowl, covering the hearth and sweeping the furnace walls. Heat is generated above the grate line where it strikes directly into the main heating surfaces.

You can count on greater comfort, too. Temperature is steady and uniform. There's no "cold 70" because the short firing cycle (short on-and-off periods) keeps air circulating. Old-style burners waste fuel when set for "short cycling." Operation is trouble-free—no moving parts inside the furnace.

Iron Fireman's exclusive Syncrostat control system automatically holds temperatures at the day and night levels you select. Set the dials just once and your furnace chores are done for the winter.

Learn more about the Iron Fireman Radiant Flame Vortex oil burner. Come in, phone, or mail coupon.

Automatic heating units for warm air, steam or hot water have built-in Vortex oil burners. (Convertible to automatic coal or gas.)



Iron Fireman Vortex oil burner converts your present furnace or boiler into an automatic heating plant.

EXCLUSIVELY CANADIAN...

Nature has endowed the Canada Goose with keen vision, sharp hearing, and a speed of flight often reaching sixty miles an hour. Each spring and fall, large V-formations of these graceful wanderers are seen in migratory flight, their weird "honking" call a familiar sound on the Canadian air.

Created and signed by The House of Seagram, this advertisement, with appropriate copy for foreign lands, is appearing in magazines and newspapers printed in various languages and circulated throughout the world.

Seagram TELLS THE WORLD ABOUT Canada

THIS advertisement was designed by The House of Seagram to tell the people of other lands about Canada and urge Canadians everywhere to tell them.

Many people in Latin America, Asia, Europe and other parts of the world are not fully aware of the richness of Canada's natural resources, wild life, scenic beauty and cultural traditions. The more the peoples of other lands know about our country, the greater will be their interest in Canada and Canadian products.

The House of Seagram feels that the horizon of industry does not terminate at the boundary of its plants; it has a broader horizon, a farther view—a view dedicated to the development of Canada's stature in every land of the globe.

...PAARL

Give your dinner-table an air of charm and grace. Serve Paarl South African ports, the preferred choice of people who understand what is finest in wines.

Enhance and brighten your dinner-time setting by adding the final touch to a perfect meal —the matchless flavour, classical bouquet and rich colour of Paarl Port.

Give extra savour to your late evening snacks. Serve Paarl Tawny Port —see how its mellow flavour blends smoothly with those snacky cubes of cheese and meats.

Serve only the finest wines at your table. Those of Paarl, to please your guests and to win their appreciation.

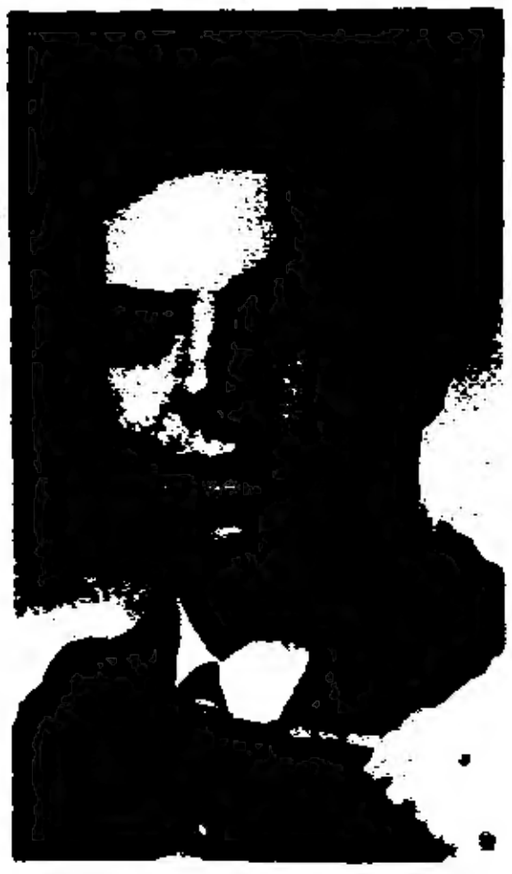
Melvin Leonard Rothman, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothman, 789 Lexington Avenue, Montreal, received his B. A. degree from McGill University; and will do further study. During the summer between the third and fourth years, he was studying at the seminar at Pontigny, France, on an International Students' Service Scholarship. He was on the executive committee of International Students' Service, at McGill. He was president of the McGill Debating Union Society in the fourth year; and won a Students' Executive Council Gold Award that year; also a Silver Award in third year; also, a gold debating "A"; taking part in the third year, in inter-collegiate debating. He belonged to Hillel Foundation; was co-chairman of the United Jewish Students' Appeal campaign for one year; and belonged to the Pre-Medical Society.

Max Rapoport, below, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Rapoport, 4265 St. Urbain Street, graduated from the School of Optometry at the University of Montreal, with great distinction; winning first-class honors. He led the class; won the Lieutenant-Governor's Silver Medal; received two prizes from the National Laboratories, one in applied optics, and one in laboratory work; and won the L.-C. Gervais prize in orthoptics (visual training).

—Allard

Philip Milton Salomon, above, eldest son of Mr and Mrs. Max Salomon, 4047 Grey Avenue, Montreal, received his Bachelor of Commerce degree from McGill University, with distinction in the general course. He was vice-president of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity in the fourth year. He belonged to Hillel Foundation, McGill Outing Club, La Societe Francaise, and took part in inter-faculty athletics. In the third year, he was on the committees for the Junior Prom and the Winter Carnival.

Simon Yasin, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Yasin, 286 St. Joseph Boulevard West, Montreal, received his B. A. degree from McGill University, with second class honors in sociology; and will study for an M. A. degree. He worked with the McGill Daily, and was associate features editor in his second year, winning a Daily silver award. In his second year, he was publicity director for the Players' Club; and stage manager for the Hillel Foundation production of the Sholem Aleichem play, "It's Hard To Be A Jew". Prior to coming to McGill, he was with the R. C. A. F., working at Overseas Headquarters in London, England.



Dr. Jack Gross, of London, England, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Gross, 2 Northcote Road, Montreal, received a renewal of a Merck and Company post-doctoral fellowship award, one of the most valuable academic awards in Canada, and administered by the National Research Council. Dr. Gross is working at the National Institute for Medical Research, in London, under Sir Charles R. Harington, in an attempt to identify the unknown iodine compounds extractable from thyroid tissue, and to determine their possible physiological action. Dr. Gross was born in Montreal. Graduating from West Hill High School, in 1937, he entered McGill University, and received his B. Sc. degree there in 1941, with honors in biochemistry; and his M.D. degree there in 1944. After service with the R. C. A. M. C., he returned to McGill to enter the department of anatomy as a teaching fellow. He was promoted to lecturer, and also carried out extensive research in the mechanism of the use of iodine in the thyroid gland, utilizing radioactive "tracer" iodine. He received his Ph. D. in anatomy in 1950, magna cum laude. In 1948, he had received first honorable mention for research from the American Goitre Association. Mrs. Jack Gross was the former Miss Helga Kohane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nat. Kohane, 1800 McGregor Avenue, Montreal. They have two children, Vicki, aged five; and David Joseph, two.

Sydney Goldman, elder son of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Goldman, 626 Outremont Avenue, Montreal, received his B. A. degree from McGill University; and will do further study. He belonged to the Pre-Medical Society; Hillel Foundation; Sociology Club; and the Duplicate Bridge Club

Harry Garber, below, younger son of Michael Garber, K.C., and Mrs. Garber, 4338 Montrose Avenue, Montreal, received his B. A. degree from McGill University. He played clarinet for two years with the McGill Band; and is a professional musician, playing that instrument, also saxophone and string bass.

Spode ... designed for the discriminating

In 18th century England, tea imported from China came wrapped in elaborately hand-decorated paper. Spode artists adapted the enchanting designs and expressed in several Spode dinnerware patterns the everlasting beauty of oriental culture.

Down through the years, people of fine taste have fondly treasured the traditional quality and lasting loveliness of their Spode dinnerware.

PAINT FAILURES

In our damp climate, moisture is waiting for a chance to get into your woodwork and do its evil work. Moisture makes wood swell, warp—causes rot under the paint, and often you don't know it until it is too late.

Before you paint wood, SEAL THE PORES WITH PENTOX!

PENTOX is the penetrating, toxic Sealer and Preserver that keeps wood dry under the paint.

PENTOX primes, seals and preserves—keeps moisture out . . . provides an ideal surface for your top coat of paint . . . a better, longer lasting paint job.

PENTOX is easily applied with a brush and dries to touch in 10 minutes. It costs less than the coat of paint it saves! Perfect, too, for basement game rooms, garden furniture, country homes, boats and cabins.

THE KOSHER SALAD & COOKING OIL

For many years, chefs, in all parts of Canada, have shown a preference for MAZOLA — connoisseurs of delicious salad dressings or mayonnaise appreciate the fine quality of Mazola. Mazola, made from sun-ripened corn, mixes easily with other necessary ingredients and imparts a distinctive and delightful flavour to salad dressings.

Mazola is unequalled for deep frying or sauteing and is most economical to use, as it can be used over and over again without carrying the odor or flavour of one food to another.

Have you tried Mazola for lighter, fluffier cakes? Send for Jane Ashley's folder of Tested Mazola Recipes containing cake, entree and salad recipes.

Order MAZOLA from your Grocer in sealed tins, three popular sizes, with pouring spout.

Every Sweet Tooth will love
SOUR CREAM BUNS

MADE WITH
FLEISCHMANN'S FAST RISING DRY YEAST ACTS FAST! STAYS FRESH!

● It's such a thrill to make new yeast treats — now you haven't to worry about yeast that stales and weakens! Fleischmann's Yeast keeps full-strength, fast-acting without refrigeration. Get a month's supply.

SOUR CREAM BUNS

● Scald 1½ c. milk, ½ c. granulated sugar, 2 tsps. salt and ¼ c. butter or margarine; cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, measure into a large bowl ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well.

Sieve ½ c. cold mashed potato and mix in 2 unbeaten egg yolks and ½ c. thick sour cream; stir into yeast mixture and stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in 3½ c. once-sifted bread flour; beat until smooth. Work in 3 c. (about) once-sifted bread flour to make a soft dough; grease top. Cover and set in a warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough, grease top, cover and again let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough and turn out on lightly-floured board; roll to ⅛" thickness and cut into 3¼" rounds and place, well apart, on greased cookie sheets. Using a floured thimble, make a deep depression in the centre of each bun. Brush rounds of dough with mixture of 1 slightly-beaten egg white and 1 tbs. water; sprinkle generously with granulated sugar. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Deepen depressions in buns and fill with thick raspberry jam. Bake in hot oven, 425°, about 15 minutes. Yield — 3 dozen large buns.

CUT FUEL COSTS—ENJOY EVEN, AUTOMATIC HEAT

The 'blue coal' Temp-Master eliminates fuel-wasting guesswork. It automatically controls damper operation with such accuracy that you save fuel, save work and enjoy even, automatic heating day and night the winter through.

Preferred by thousands for even, steady, healthful warmth . . . No Smoke . . . No Soot

Yes, thousands know that when they order 'blue coal' they take the gamble out of fuel buying. You get carefree comfort because 'blue coal' is packed full of heat units that only a deep-mined, high-quality coal can give—the comfort of heat to spare when the thermometer takes a dive.

And 'blue coal' is clean. Burns without smoke or soot. Goes all day with a slow-burning, steady flame that's healthful and money-saving. Order 'blue coal'—the world's finest anthracite. The color guarantees the quality.

man callous to the needs and struggles of others. But we, in the pride of possession, often forget the true nature and source of human wealth, unmindful of the fact that no one, however strong or wise, can control the destinies of his own life singlehanded. Fair dealing between man and man enriches the whole world. But when one takes advantage of the other, then disappointment, strife and hatred ensue . . . In this solemn hour we pray Thee that we may stand by the side of the men of Vision; and may we in our daily pursuits, through generous sympathy and personal sacrifice, help to build the better world."

Who can deny that this is an age of anxiety? Yes, anxiety is the key-word which describes the present predicament of ourselves and the world. The forebodings and dreads of atomic bombs and that of the totalitarian powers seem also reflected in our own personal lives. Freud long ago pointed out that anxiety is but the alarm signal that attempts to tell us something is wrong. Let us resolve during our pilgrimage in God's house to take courage and examine what causes this anxiety.

Let us co-operate with God by giving emphasis to human brotherhood. We then shall have the courage not to be frightened, but to take the long view of human history and recognize that despite the anxieties of the present, humanity is ever on the march. The Ritual for the new year speaks of the reign of wickedness, that it is bound to vanish like smoke and that ultimately God's sovereignty will be recognized by all men with the result that humanity will recognize its oneness. Let us with courage therefore face the days that lie ahead and through faith be possessed of hope.

We rightly glory in the achievements of science, but science without moral advance lies helpless. Science can only prove a blessing for the world when it is controlled ethically. We recognize the admirable achievements of science especially in the art of healing, but remember not to over depend on the outer scientific cures. Genuine health is not to be had only from outward help, but from that which takes place in the soul within. We must cultivate anew personal faith in the Great Healer, as did our fathers. This is well recognized by the scientists themselves. Hence, the great emphasis today on bodily health and soul health being considered at one and at the same time.

May the Almighty grant us during the coming year to find the way of courage that we may not be afraid of fear and that, aided by scientific progress, ours may be a year of health, genuine health that comes from a merry heart.

These then, are the goals that we yearn for as we commence a new year. We eagerly pray that we may strive for wisdom, that in addition to our apt use of skills, we may be artists and not mere artisans in the building of our lives. During the year that lies ahead we will cultivate, too, the understanding heart and ours will be a life characterized by compassion for fellowman. And lastly, by the unconquered will shall we continue our pilgrimage and through increased faith come into God's presence.

May God grant unto us the blessings of wisdom, compassion, and courage in the new year.

WHAT SHALL WE CELEBRATE?

are not lacking that an awakening is possible. We have an integrated community, consisting of men and women by and large above the average in intelligence; we have learned to gather large sums; we have cultural institutions which can serve us as a nucleus; we have an abundance of gifted authors, and thinkers. What we need is a community "will to create" in those areas of Jewish life which we have come to call the life of the spirit.

The general atmosphere has without question become more favorable to this type of creativity. In fact, unless we as Jews take advantage of this environmental change, we will sustain tremendous losses among our best minds and finest spirits. We must encourage the reading and writing of Jewish books. We must revive the custom of adult study among our people. We must resume the teaching of Jewish values, and make Judaism (not antisemitism) the subject of constant conversation.

Although three hundred years old, we are still young as a Jewish community. But we are not so young as to postpone what the time and the circumstances call for. The tercentenary celebration may prove to be a meaningless holiday, if we celebrate the past; or it may become the turning point in American Jewish life, if we consider the future.

fate of those writers and actors who, on transplanting themselves, found that their pens faltered and their voices failed. For to these people language was their tool, the primary instrument of their talents, and without it they were as men who groped in the darkness. In Palestine few of them mastered the Hebrew language well enough for the purpose of their art.

But for Zondek this problem did not exist. When he came to Palestine in 1935 he brought along with him much of his own valuable and expensive scientific equipment, and he set it up in the three small rooms in the cellar of an old Arab house which Hadassah provided for him as a laboratory. For by this time the University and Hadassah had been drawn together in that spirit of co-operation which was later to culminate in the establishment of the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School. The University's medical departments, which had now grown in number, naturally served the Hadassah Hospital too, whilst the staff was shared by both institutions. Zondek was in fact appointed not only professor of gynaecology and obstetrics at the University, but also head of the department of gynaecology and obstetrics at the Hadassah Hospital.

In his ramshackle laboratory at Hadassah, which lacked even accommodation for his experimental animals so that the goats and chickens on his roof created almost a farmyard atmosphere, Zondek continued his researches in hormonal problems which he had begun in Germany in 1919. He trained a school of young scientists who today look to him almost as to a father. He found himself among congenial colleagues and he did not ask for more. When in 1940 he moved into the modern, spacious laboratories provided for him in the Postgraduate Medical School (Ratnoff Building) on Mount Scopus, the improved conditions, he maintains, made no difference to his work at all.

In some ways he has found his work even more interesting and stimulating than in Germany. What problems one came up against in this little country with its diverse peoples and their diverse backgrounds! When a woman among certain sections of the population may be divorced for not bearing children, when barrenness is considered a thing of shame, what might a gynaecologist not achieve! Bernhard Zondek is too sensitive a human being, too greatly endowed with sympathy and understanding, not to rejoice in such blessings as he may bring.

His work in Jerusalem has only added lustre to his name. Honours continue to be showered on him. He is an honorary member of numerous scientific bodies. Scientific works have been dedicated to him. He is invited to participate in important international conferences. But he is modest about his honours and his achievements. He shuns publicity. He categorically refuses to grant interviews to newspaper correspondents. He lives quietly in his large flat in the suburb of Rehavia, surrounded by the massive furniture he brought with him from Germany and by the books which speak of his main interests, medicine, and after it, art. He avoids social life although he can be a delightful and amusing companion but there is hardly an art exhibition that has been held in Jerusalem throughout all the years he has lived there that he has not attended.

Zondek still has not mastered Hebrew and speaks it haltingly. In numbers of ways he has not adapted himself completely to the life of Israel. Yet he is of the true Israelis. For this country has become very dear to him. It is his home. He takes pride in its accomplishments and he likes to think that in the honors he receives Israel is honored too.

One of the greatest of these honors was conferred on him recently by the University of Turin when, at a vast international medical congress, he was presented with an honorary doctorate in recognition of his "exceptional merits in the field of medical science". It was the first honorary doctorate in medicine to be conferred by the University in 550 years, and the ceremony of conferment was an outstandingly brilliant occasion. Leading scientists from all over Italy and many parts of the world were present. The Italian newspapers carried lengthy illustrated reports of the function. The name of Zondek was on the lips of hundreds of people.

"It was too much, too much", he said on his return to Israel, although it was clear that he had been deeply moved. But he must have been even more deeply moved by certain reflections. For there were numerous doctors from Germany present at the Congress. They had had to listen to his praises being sung. And they had had to hear it stated over and over again that this scientist, whom any country would be grateful to own, had been driven out of Germany, and that he was now a professor at the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School and a citizen of Israel.

The Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

reflection. How easy it is to see the other fellow and his faults! How prone we are to criticise our neighbors! We always see the mote in someone else's eye, and rarely see the beam in our own. One of the sins in which, according to our sages, everybody is involved, is that of speaking ill of our neighbor, because it is so easy to find fault with someone else.

Tashlich reminds us, however, that the time has come to stop searching the next fellow for sins and to begin searching ourselves for our own sins. This is a particularly important reminder for the pious and the self-righteous. The observant Jew is always apt to decry the patent impiety of the non-observant Jew and to indulge in the dangerous pastime of sin-seeking; that is, seeking sins in the fellow who doesn't pattern his life after one's own conception of what piety is. The man who does one good deed is apt to consider himself free of the obligation to further examine himself to determine how many other good deeds he might have done and didn't do. Tashlich repeats for us the rabbinic dictum: Improve yourself before you start improving others.

The depths of the sea serve as an important symbol to the Jewish people. Commenting upon the verse in Isaiah, "But the wicked are like the troubled sea," our sages say that the wicked who attempt to destroy the Jewish people are like the waves of the sea, which rush with violent force against the dry land, hoping to engulf it but always spending their force in the initial rush and never accomplishing their desire. And despite the failure of each preceding wave, others follow in the same vain pursuit.

The same has been true of the Hamans and Hitlers of Jewish history. Each has attempted to storm with violence the fortress of Jewish life and annihilate the children of Israel. The impact of each wave of persecution has taken its toll of a segment of Jewish life. But no wave is powerful enough to engulf all of Israel and break down our impregnable fortress. Though Hitler had countless examples before him that any attempt to destroy the Jewish people is doomed to failure and that anyone who makes that attempt is doomed to perdition, he nevertheless assumed that the efficiency and thoroughness of his nefarious plan would make him an exception to the rule.

God has ordained it that there are no exceptions to this rule. Israel is battered, suffers grievous losses, but always recovers and reestablishes its way of life. The sins of Israel are cast into the depths of the sea, they excite the sea to lift up its hand against a sinful people, but the sea meets its inexorable fate. God purges Israel of its sins, and Israel lives on for the greater glory of God.

Surgeon Was Author And Poet

Dr. Moses Benmosche, surgeon and writer, died at his home, 600 West 111th Street, N. Y., after a brief illness at the age of 67. Born in London, Dr. Benmosche received his M. D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia in 1904, was an instructor in histology, pathology and bacteriology at his alma mater for the next two years and a student at the Middlesex Hospital and College in London in 1908-11. He had been an assistant in cancer research at Middlesex Hospital.

He was director of the pathological laboratory of Mobray Hospital, Capetown, South Africa, in 1911-12, and directed a pathological laboratory in Nashua, N. H., in 1913-14. Later, he practiced general surgery in Detroit, and since 1920 he had been a general surgeon and engaged in cancer research. He was a senior in clinical surgery at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Dr. Benmosche was the author of a widely sold book, "A Surgeon Explains to the Layman," published in 1940, and of "A Book of Selected Poems" and "Waifs and Orphans." He wrote also monographs on cancer research and surgical papers. He was long a contributor of articles, book reviews and poems to The Jewish Forum, a magazine, and had served as president of the Jewish Forum Association.

He had been chairman of the American Committee of the National Sick Fund of Palestine. He was a Mason and a leader in the Knights of Pythias, having been chairman emeritus of the Grand Lodge committee on ritual and instruction. He was a delegate to the International Congress on Tuberculosis in Washington in 1908.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Gladys Goodman Benmosche; two sons, Elkan Benmosche of Los Angeles and Jack Benmosche of Manhattan; two sisters, Miss Rose Benmosche and Mrs. Sarah Worman of Brooklyn, and two brothers, Daniel Benmosche of Monticello, N. Y., and Robert Benmosche of Flushing, Queens.

Leaders Of Israel Fear U.S. Is Pro-Arab

There is a growing sense of frustration and despondency among Israeli leaders at the failure of both the United States and Britain to take their country into account in reported planning for the organization shortly of a Near East defense board.

According to Washington and London reports, the Western allies are preparing to establish a regional defense system to include at the start the United States, Britain, France, Turkey, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. The Arab States, it is understood, would be invited to join afterward, according to the New York Times.

The only provision made for Israel's possible participation would seem to be in a rejection by the Arab states of such invitations, although Israel has been the most forthright of the Near East countries, next to Turkey, in declaring her desire for a role in the area's defense. Israelis believe that United States views prevailed over British in the determination to try to include Arab countries and exclude Israel.

Inevitably this has been interpreted in Israel as further evidence of a determination of the dominant group of U.S. State Department Near East experts to "appease" the Arabs at Israel's expense. The Department's haste in condemning Israel for its part in the Lake Huleh dispute against Syria and its recent seeming reluctance on the issue of forcing the Suez Canal blockade to a head in the United Nations Security Council are cited in support of the contention that the Department has taken up where the British Foreign Office left off in trying to woo the Arabs.

Israel's readiness to come to a formal understanding with Britain and the United States on matters affecting Near East security has been placed before American and British leaders repeatedly in the last six months. The British are believed in Israel to have been impressed, particularly after a tour of the Near East by Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British Commander in Chief for the area.

Many Israelis believe the widely publicized neutralist tendencies of the Arab countries have frightened the Americans from making even the smallest gesture of appreciation, in a military sense, of Israel's intention of fight aggression in the Near East. This has led to some questioning of the wisdom of Israel's having so openly declared herself on the side of the West. It is not inconceivable in the opinion of observers that the continued ignoring of Israel's military needs in relation to regional defense would inspire a neutralist movement that the Government could not ignore.

There is a strong base for such a movement in the Mapam United Workers party, which received 12 per cent of the vote in Israel's recent general elections. The desire for neutrality is not confined to Mapam, however. The strength of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's leadership has been partly in his ability to persuade others in his way of thinking on defense matters and to have confined organized neutralism to Mapam.

More and more Israelis are pointing out to Americans that Mr. Ben-Gurion's position is bound to be weakened if Washington military leaders maintain what is deemed in Israel to be a pro-Arab and anti-Israeli attitude. Thus far all blandishments of the Soviet Union's agents to fulfill Israeli's arms needs have been in vain.

Israel's present leaders have always considered the price they would have to pay for such arms too high. It is a safe assumption, observers believe, that nothing would change their opinion on this question. The danger, according to these observers, is that the United States will undermine Israel's present leadership, according to the New York Times.

A.J.C. REPORTS FASCIST RISE IN EUROPE

Fascist political parties similar to those of Hitler and Mussolini and oriented against the United States and other Western democracies are gaining ground in Europe, particularly West Germany and Italy, it was reported by the American Jewish Committee.

The Committee made public a thirty-page analysis of the political situation in Europe prepared by its European office in Paris. Asserting that "the enemies of democracy are organizing to use the freedoms of democracy in order to destroy it," the report noted with alarm the "apparent inability or unwillingness" of West Germany and Italy to take "forthright and effective action" against the Fascist parties.

At the recent Jubilee Cowal Highland Gathering at Dunoon, Scotland, the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada, from Hamilton, Ontario, won the territorial band contest. It was the first time that a Cowal trophy has left Great Britain.

CLASS IN COOKERY

one pound spinach
two large onions
one tablespoon butter
one teaspoon salt
two large carrots
one large parsnip juice of two lemons
one tin condensed tomato soup
one tablespoon finely-chopped green parsley
one small bunch celery
one-half cup matzoh meal
one egg
one tablespoon salt
one-half teaspoon pepper
four tablespoons butter
one-half cup sugar
one large cabbage

Remove core from head of the cabbage. Place cabbage in pot, and scald with boiling water, cover tightly and allow to cool. This separates the leaves. Drain off water, and trim hard centre of each leaf, before filling with vegetable mixture. To prepare the vegetable filling, thoroughly wash the spinach, and chop it fine; and then add the onions, which have been cut up, and sauted light brown, in the butter and one teaspoon salt. Then add grated carrots and parsnip; then parsley; and celery, which has been chopped medium fine; then matzoh meal (or finely-crushed cracker crumbs); egg, the one tablespoon salt; and the pepper. Mix thoroughly; and fill the leaves. Cook in a heavy pot, with the soup, the four tablespoons butter; one-half cup sugar, and the lemon juice, for one or one and one-half hours. Serve hot.

Mrs. P. Braunstein,

4694 Maplewood Avenue, Montreal.

This recipe was used as a budget entry at a display of recipes, at a budget recipe meeting, from "A Treasure For My Daughter", published by the Ethel Epstein Ein Chapter of Montreal Hadassah.

MANDEL BREAD

one full cup flour
three tablespoons baking powder
one pinch of salt
three eggs
three cups flour
one-half cup oil
one cup chopped almonds
rind and juice of one lemon

Grate lemon rind. Beat eggs and add sugar. Sift flour and baking powder together twice. Add to egg mixture, alternating with oil. Add salt, grated rind, juice, and chopped almonds. Mix thoroughly. Form batter into rolls, and bake in 375 degree (moderate) oven, for twenty to thirty minutes. When done, remove from pan, slice and toast in 350-degree oven until brown.

MARRIAGES

BENSON-GROVER

The marriage of Miss Norma Betty Grover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Grover, Westmount Boulevard, to Bernard Robert Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benson, Windsor Avenue, took place at Temple Emanu-El, on September 9, at half-past six o'clock, Reverend Dr. Harry J. Stern officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of Guipure lace and net, with a moulded bodice of lace, a short lace jacket, with three-quarter length sleeves, and full skirt of net, with a long train. A circlet of lace held in place her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Mrs. Sydney Lithwick, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown of apricot-coloured satin, with a toning hat of tulle and leaves, and carried bronze-shaded chrysanthemums. Mrs. Marvyn Grover, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Judith Marshall, as bridesmaids, were in peach-coloured taffeta and tulle gowns, with full skirts, and had large peach-coloured and brown tulle hats, with velvet streamers, carrying cascade bouquets of bronze-coloured chrysanthemums. Barbara Ruth Leff and Linda Beth Simon, cousins of the bride, as flower girls, wore white organdy dresses with peach-coloured sashes and head bands and carried nosegays in the same colors. Richard M. Benson, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Sydney Lithwick, brother-in-law of the bride; Marvyn Grover, brother of the bride; Sumner Rosenthal, of New York; Robert Sabler, Elmer Horwood, Harry Schneider, and Alan Gray. There was organ music and a choir, and "Because" was sung. Both aisles in the Temple had the pews marked with white gladioli and white satin bows. The side walls were marked with lattice screens with green and white gladioli interspersed throughout; and the altar had a canopy of flowers and large white dogwood trees banked on each side. A dinner followed at the Mount Royal Hotel. The rooms were decorated with palms, pink and white gladioli, and white dogwood trees. The tables had individual centerpieces of pink rosette roses and white baby's breath. Mrs. Grover, mother of the bride, received in a floor-length gown of emerald-green satin, with draped bodice and skirt ending in a short train, a tulle hat of the same shade, with a bird of paradise, and a corsage of green orchids. Mrs. Benson, mother of the groom, wore a Victorian-style gown of gold lame, over an underskirt of gold beaded brown net. Her small hat was of gold mesh and she wore a corsage of brown orchids. The couple left later by plane on a European trip. The bride wore a tweed suit of mauve tone, with matching felt hat, alligator accessories, and a corsage of white orchids. The couple will reside in New York.

LIGHTSTONE-PEDVIS

The marriage of Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pedvis, of Quebec City, to Jack Lightstone, son of Mrs. Lyon Lightstone, Cote des Neiges Road, and the late Mr. Lightstone, took place at Beth Israel Ohev Sholom Synagogue, Cremazie Boulevard in Quebec, on Sunday, September 2, at five o'clock. Rabbi J. Epstein and Cantor C. Kleinman officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of candlelight satin. Made with an overskirt of bouffant nylon tulle, it had a modified off-the-shoulder neckline, and a fitted bodice, and the hip line was embellished by a circle of orange blossom clusters. Her fingertip veil of tulle was draped to a pleated bonnet, with orange blossoms; and she carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and fleurs d'amour. Miss Maude Roback, of Cleveland, Ohio, cousin of the bride, was maid of honour, and the other bridal attendants were Misses Randy Gould and Edith Welser, both of Montreal. They were dressed in similar bouffant gowns of lilac-shaded velvet and tulle, with head bandeaux of matching velvet. The maid of honor carried a cascade bouquet of Tea roses; and the bouquets of the bridesmaids were yellow pom pom nosegays. Elie Solomon, of Montreal, was best man. The ushers were: Berel Pedvis, brother of the bride, of Quebec City; Dr. Sidney Pedvis, cousin of the bride, of Montreal; and Mort Cohen. The groom was given in marriage by his mother, and his uncle, Gordon Lightstone. There was organ music White gladioli were used to decorate the synagogue. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where multi-coloured roses, snapdragons, and gladioli formed the decoration. Mrs. Pedvis, mother of the bride, received in a floor-length gown of pale pink lace, with brilliants forming a tunic, and an accordion-pleated tulle skirt; and a matching pink velvet hat, with a pale green orchid pinned to her evening bag. Mrs. Lightstone, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of robin's-egg blue lace, with a matching velvet hat; and a purple-orchid corsage. Later Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lightstone left for Schroon Lake, N. Y., the bride travelling in a three-piece suit of dusty-rose tweed, with smoke-grey accessories. They will reside at 3465 Ridgewood Avenue. Dr. Harry Roback and family, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Shapira and family, of Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y.; Mrs. M. Shapiro, of Long Beach, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Nassauer, and Miss Sybil Lax, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Troster; and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lightstone and family, all of Toronto.; Mrs. M. New Year's Greetings!

Talmud Torah — "Equality For All"

By Ben Beutel, President, United Talmud Torahs of Montreal

For our people, the approach of the New Year is not simply another worldly occasion, a mere set date in the calendar. For us, it is, rather, a soul-probing period of High Holydays, ushered in by the solemn service of Rosh Hashonah, followed through by the penitential ten days culminating in Yom Kippur, and then on to other festivals bound up with our divinely-guided history. It is a time when, looking at once backwards and forwards, we take account of our religious resources.

Of these resources, none is more valuable than Talmud Torah, which our rabbis of yore stressed as giving "equality for all". I am happy, as president of United Talmud Torahs, to state at this juncture that religious education in our city is growing apace; additional classes have been opened in Park Extension due to a large enrollment; that as a result of the request of the Cote des Neiges community, a large number of children are being brought to school by buses for afternoon Hebrew religious education; that the Herzliah Academy is being expanded; and that additional facilities for students have been provided. These facts have more than a statistical significance. They mean, ultimately, that our ancestral traditions are being received by greater numbers and with greater intensity; that, in a word, our spiritual strength is greater.

In the chronicles of our people, as year has followed year, what has tied the ages together? Our traditions: this it is which has been the golden chain binding us in one great unity beneath the unity of God, from the days of Sinai to this day. It is a heritage which we must cherish, and no occasion is better fitted to our re-dedication and to its high purpose, than the Holy Days.

To all those, teachers, parents or subscribers who have been engaged in the good works of Torah, I express profound thanks, and extend to them, as to Kahal Israel, my sincerest wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year, a year to be marked by Torah's increasing dissemination and glory.

Pesner, Arnold Frank, Elie Solomon, Miss Nancy Olak, Miss Margery Palmer, and Miss Beverly Lemarquand, all of Montreal, were wedding guests.

LEVY-SOLOWAY

The marriage of Miss Jean Soloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Soloway, of Ottawa, Ont., to J. Victor Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Levy, 616 Victoria Avenue, and of Rawdon, took place at the Agudath Achim Synagogue, in Ottawa, on September 2, at half-past five o'clock. Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat, of Montreal, and Reverend J. Rabin, of Ottawa, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of lace and net had a fitted bodice and full net skirt, appliqued with lace motifs falling into a cathedral train. Her finger-length veil of tulle illusion fell from a cap of the lace, studded with rhinestones, and she carried a cluster of white orchids and stephanotis, and had a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The bride's sisters, Miss Roslyn Soloway, as maid of honor, and Miss Zelda Soloway as bridesmaid, were dressed alike in floor-length gowns of embroidered coral net, with matching hats, and carried sprays of white single pom poms. Karen Kaufman, niece of the groom, as junior bridesmaid, wore a bouffant dress of pale blue embroidered organdy, carrying a spray of white single pom poms, with a head bandeau of the same flowers. William David Levy, of London, England, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Dr. Irving Soloway, brother of the bride; Jack Kaufman, Robert Cummings, Jack Cummings, and Edgar Wener. White and coral-coloured gladioli were used to decorate. A dinner took place at the Community Centre, on Chapel Street, in Ottawa. Mrs. Soloway, the bride's mother, received in a gown of grey lace and tulle, with matching tulle hat, trimmed with purple, and a corsage of purple orchids. Mrs. Levy, mother of the groom, wore a gown of ashes-of-roses satin and copper-coloured net, a cap effect hat of the same colors, and a corsage of deep pink orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Levy left later for Bermuda and other points. They will reside on Cote St. Luc Road, Montreal.

LUBARSKY-ADELSON

The marriage of Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Adelson, 3190 Kent Avenue, to Saul Lubarsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Lubarsky, of Drummondville, took place on June 14, at Adath Israel Synagogue, at half-past six o'clock, Rabbi Charles Bender and Cantor Eugene Goldberger officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her floor-length gown was of white lace, with beaded applique, high neckline, with inserts of the applique; long tight sleeves, coming to points at the wrists, tight-fitted bodice, and a very full tiered skirt, trimmed with frills of applique. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a beaded skull-cap and she carried a white prayer book adorned with an orchid and white streamers. Miss Rheva Adelson, cousin of the bride, as maid of honour, wore a gown of grey net, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, tight-fitted, brocaded bodice, and a full skirt. She had a flowered headdress and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink roses. Louis Lubarsky, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Irwin Adelson, Eddie Adelson, brothers of the bride; Issie Lubarsky, brother of the groom; Edward Adelson, Gus Bauer, cousins of the bride; Sydney Lifshitz, Harold Zeitz, and Irving Pollack. The synagogue was decorated with variegated flowers and greenery; and the aisle was with candelabara, spring flowers, and white streamers. "O, Promise Me", and "Because" were sung by Eddie Lemco. Lenny Rubin and his orchestra played. Two hundred and seventy-five guests were received in the hall of the synagogue by Mrs. Adelson, mother of the bride, in a royal-blue crepe floor-length gown, trimmed with beads, with beaded bag to match, a royal-blue lace hat, with a pink feather, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Lubarsky, mother of the groom, received in a cinnamon-shaded lace gown, with beaded bag to match, a matching lace hat, and a corsage of yellow roses. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon motoring through the United States, stopping off in New York; Washington, D.C., and Virginia Beach, Virginia. The bride travelled in a green gabardine suit, with navy-blue accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. They are residing at 3180 Van Horne Avenue.

ONE FRONT INDIVISIBLE

BY DR. GEORGE STREAN, OF MONTREAL

From November 1st to 15th we shall all have an opportunity to participate in a history-making First Joint Campaign for the Combined Jewish Appeal and the United Israel Appeal.

Knowing as I do the history of our community's response to these causes and the enthusiasm with which those who already have learned of the merger have greeted this significant move, I am fully confident that we shall meet this new challenge with the same courage and success which has characterized the past. However, it is extremely important that every member of the community recognizes and understands the deep meaning of this step.

Within our lifetime we have witnessed one of the most diabolical, destructive, and desperate efforts to destroy the human spirit, and have seen the evil forces pushed back into the darkness from within which they sprung. The entire free world is now at grips with the problem of reconstructing the battered and scarred face of humanity, so that the true principles of religion and democracy may govern man's future.

There are many fronts on which this battle for the survival of free civilization is being conducted. It is not my purpose to discuss, at this time, the many political and military fronts with which you are all familiar, but it is important to emphasize the fact that the spirit of freedom and human liberties is nowhere better reflected than in the impressive social, philanthropic, rehabilitative, and reconstructive work which is being done every minute of every day in Canada, in Montreal, in Europe, and so dramatically — in Israel.

If we have learned any lesson in this generation of ours, it should be the lesson that the future of the free world is bound up as a unit; that a threat to liberty in any corner of the globe is a threat to liberty in all corners; that every act that strengthens the hand of democracy in one locality strengthens it elsewhere. Out of the cauldron of hatred and destruction has come the State of Israel, steeped in the blood of generations of determined Jewish men and women and with the traditions of a people which has contributed mightily over the centuries to the elevation of human life through the principles of dignity and brotherhood of man under the guidance of one God.

It is clear to all of us that the work which we do through our organizations in Montreal, the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies and its many vital arms; the Jewish General Hospital; the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society; the community camps for children; the Jewish Public Library; the Hillel Foundation; the work which we do nationally and locally through the Canadian Jewish Congress; the work of continued relief and rehabilitation overseas through the Joint Distribution Committee and other bodies supported by the United Jewish Relief Agencies of the Congress; and the heroic work which is being done in Israel, are all parts of one giant responsibility.

Israel today stands as a democratic bulwark in a troubled area; as a home for hundreds of thousands of Jews previously homeless, and a precious haven of thousands more to come; as a symbol of the ultimate defeat of forces which would destroy the cherished moral and spiritual treasures of mankind. It is obvious, then, that our thinking and our actions should be unified in order to bring our greatest strength to bear in meeting the many complex and decisive challenges on all fronts at all times.

But there are many practical questions involved to which we should give our attention as well. This campaign will come as a real blessing to everyone involved — the leaders, the workers, the contributors — in short, to the entire community. Instead of having to maintain organizations with a great many of the same people in both, and all soliciting the same contributors twice a year, everything will now be done at one time. All of this adds up to much greater efficiency and economy.

Some people have wondered how this merger could have taken place inasmuch as the United Israel Appeal conducted a campaign earlier this year. The answer is simple and of great importance. The campaign recently concluded was to finance 1951 operations. The campaign to be conducted this fall will underwrite our community expenses for 1952. There is no overlapping in the period covered and there will be no United Israel Appeal Campaign conducted next spring. Naturally, in the first year of such an important change, it is not always easy to see the picture so clearly, but after the first campaign is completed the many advantages will be increasingly obvious.

We are now heading for the greatest single combined effort which we, as a community, have ever been called on to make—the First Joint Campaign for the Combined Jewish Appeal and the United Israel Appeal. That it is logical is obvious. That it should eventually happen was inevitable. Whether it will succeed or not rests entirely in the hands of all of us. With the understanding, support and faith of the community, in the great work which this campaign makes possible, I am confident that we will, indeed, meet the great challenge with vision and with the required strength. Let us be grateful that the opportunity has been granted to us to open our hands and hearts on behalf of so many causes which are so vital to Jewish life and to the future of the free world.

Krause and daughter, Tina, of Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y.

Zionism Of The Future Poses Problems

BY DR. ISRAEL GOLDSTEIN, OF NEW YORK, PRESIDENT OF THE WORLD FEDERATION OF GENERAL ZIONISTS

The 23rd Zionist Congress was an important Congress but not a great Congress. It was important because it registered a new era in Zionism, the era of Medinat Israel. But it failed to measure up to its mission, that of defining Zionism's new aim for the new era. This ideological failure was at the same time the safeguard of its organizational strength and of its unity for practical tasks. The definition of Zionist aims, the distinction between Zionists and non-Zionist friends of Israel is in the degree of devotion to Israel and in the attitude toward Jewish survivalism in the Diaspora.

Let it not be thought that American Zionists left the Congress with any sense of victory in having prevented the crystallization of a definition of Zionist aims. They appreciate the restraint of those who consented not to press for definitions at this time, but they feel both challenged and disturbed by the views of their colleagues in Israel, and they will have to ponder the meaning and purport of Zionism for them more seriously and more deeply than in the days when the political aim of Zionism engaged their whole attention.

This congress was important because it faced up to the issue of unconditional cooperation with Israel and accepted it as a basis of the partnership between Medinat Israel and the Jewish people as represented by the Zionist Organization. It does not preclude criticism and advice, but not at the expense of practical cooperation. At the same time the Congress reflected a positive attitude toward the Zionist Organization on the part of the Government leaders and the spokesmen which marks substantial progress in comparision with the attitude of two years ago. The spirit of mutual relationships is more important than any specific contract. Therefore the matter of a legal status for the Zionist Organization work in Israel, important as it is, will derive its chief validity and viability from the continuance of mutual goodwill between the two partners.

On the subject of chalutziut, I believe there has been some progress at this Congress. Our Israeli friends have been made to understand that new methods and new approaches must be found to attract the Jewish youth of the Anglo-Saxon countries, and that appeals for limited periods of service in Israel, coupled with approaches to youth possessed of technical skills, are likely to produce larger results in terms of numbers and better results even in terms of permanent settlement in Israel.

It was remarkable that not a single voice at this Congress was raised in criticism of the policy of keeping the doors of Israel wide open for huge immigration, despite the hardships which such a policy imposes upon the economy of the country. The Jews of the world and of the United States, in particular, are called upon to do their part toward making this policy practicable by means of the contribution to the campaigns for Israel, their subscriptions to Israel bonds, and their investments in Israel enterprises.

One of the side issues of the Congress which, however, affected the climate of the Congress as a whole, was the split which occurred in the World Confederation of General Zionists on the eve of the Congress. It was the result of strains and tensions which had been gathering up for several years. Because of the leading role which General Zionists play in the Diaspora, this disturbance was regarded as a misfortune for the entire Zionist movement. Fortunately the breach was healed in time to reflect itself in a harmonious working together during the closing days of the Congress and at the sessions of the actions committee immediately thereafter.

It is true that the Congress lacked inspiration. Taking place in a transition period, it was inevitably cautious and practical. But the visits to all parts of the land of Israel, its new towns and villages, roads, trees and waterpipes, housing and industries; from Dan to Elath, provided ample inspiration. The amazing growth of the country is out of all proportion to its internal problems and external difficulties.

If a word of advice is not amiss, the people of Israel, the rank and file, and especially its younger generation, would be well advised to be more public relations minded vis-a-vis Jewish visitors from abroad, for the ties between Israel and the Jewish people must be, for the sake of both, closer than the ties between any other state and its kin in the outside world. The Israeli newspapers and radio can perform a great service in this direction.

A special corner in the library of Kibbutz Buchenwald, and a tablet are to be devoted to the memory of Dr. Robert S. Marcus, one-time political director of the World Jewish Congress in New York, who served with the U.S. Forces in Europe during the war and took a leading part in relief and rehabilitation of Jewish D.P.'s in the U.S. Zone of Germany after the occupation. Funds were raised by the staff of the World Jewish Congress New York office.

Statistics presented in the Canadian Parliament by the Hon. Walter E. Harris, Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, show that 5,993 Germans came to Canada during the first five months of 1951, as compared with 1,600 during the same period in 1950. The number of Jewish immigrants who entered Canada during the same time was 2,416 (1,100 in the corresponding period of 1950).

The city of Montreal was founded in 1642 by Paul de Maisonneuve, a young officer in the Army of Royalist France, to whom was entrusted the responsibility of "establishing this colony for the glory of God and the Kingdom of France". The cite of the city was the stockaded Huron Indian village of Hochelaga which Jacques Cartier visited in 1535. Today Montreal is Canada's largest city.

Seventy per cent of the office workers and sixty-five per cent of plant workers in Canada are on a five-day week according to a recent survey made by the Department of Labour.

Cubits To Shylock's Stature

BY DERRICK CUTHBERT, DIRECTOR OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION, SOUTH AFRICAN NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

The Social Sciences Department of UNESCO has recently focused attention once again on the subject of "stereotypes," a matter discussed in the pages of Jewish Affairs about a year ago. The study of stereotyped concepts among children now going forward has already indicated quite clearly the importance of the influence of stereotypes on relations between peoples and the need to counteract such concepts with a constructive programme of education. It has been alleged that several of the text-books in use in schools encourage the formation of stereotypes and it is the purpose of this article to examine the contention that Shakespeare in The Merchant of Venice (one of the favourite plays for school use) created such a stereotype in the character of Shylock.

It must be admitted at the outset that the play can be handled in such a way by the teacher as to substantiate this contention to the hilt. One must ask, however, whether such treatment does justice to the genius, if not to the intention, of Shakespeare in writing the play. My own conviction, which owes a great deal to the writings of Poole and Quiller-Couch, and to my old teacher, Professor Charlton, of Manchester, is that it does not. Shakespeare may have set out to furnish his audience with a stereotype, but his own artistry, and his own humanity, defeated him.

It should be recognised, first of all, that the subject of the play, or at least the Jewish element in it, was chosen for Shakespeare, a working dramatist with his bread and butter to earn, by contemporary events and by the demands of the theatre and players he served. The Merchant of Venice seems to have been written in 1598, or possibly a little earlier. In 1594 a Spanish-Jewish physician named Lopez had made an unsuccessful attempt to poison the Queen and had been executed. As is the unhappy story again and again in history, this attempted crime, which had, of course, nothing racial at all in its motives, became the excuse for an outburst of racial feeling. In 1594 and 1595 there was an outbreak of mob-violence against the Jews, particularly in London, and the passions of the general populace were inflamed.

Had there been popular newspapers in those days the more picturesque Sunday editions would have carried "outspoken" articles, headed "The Jewish Menace," and lurid stories of Jewish crimes and atrocities concocted in the manner of what is sometimes called the "gutter press" (the term is an insult to gutters, for their function is to carry away filth as quickly as possible, not to manufacture it). Increased circulation would have rewarded the astuteness of those editors and proprietors who were quick to seize the opportunity of pandering to public taste.

There were, however, in Shakespeare's time, no popular newspapers in which the Jews might have been pilloried to everyone's satisfaction except their own. But there was the theatre, enjoying a tremendous vogue partly because it was, as opportunity offered, an equally faithful mirror of mass-sentiment: and there were the producers, seeking as assiduously as any modern editor, to cash in on popular feeling. Thus was Shakespeare's theme chosen for him. He would write a play in which he would "let the Jew dog have it hot," as Charlton puts it. He would provide his audience with a figure at whom they could hiss and jeer to their hearts' content. And, as a matter of fact, the portrayal of Shylock upon the Elizabethan stage, as a red-haired guy rather than a man, was quite in keeping with this intention.

That, then, was the theme. What about the material? What was to be the plot in which this monstrous figure should be exhibited for public odium and abuse? It would be wearisome to discuss the sources, the older plays and stories, to which Shakespeare may have turned (as he did in so many other instances). That part of the plot focused on Shylock — the story of the loan against the bond of a pound of flesh—was familiar enough. The casket theme and the ring episode were also well-worn. But, whether well-worn or not, such material as this would suit the purpose in view.

The main thing, after all, was to give the Jew sufficient appearances on the stage; to display his villainy and to punish him in the end. But it should be noticed that both the bond theme and the casket theme (in which a most eligible heiress promises herself to whoever has the luck to choose the right casket) are really too outrageous for a play. In the hands of a skilful story-teller they may perhaps be made credible, for in that case the action is carried forward by stereotypes in the reader's imagination: but on the stage the characters must take flesh and blood upon themselves and behave like recognisable human beings. Since, however, Shakespeare's aim was to present a stereotype, this consideration was no hindrance to his choosing such material for his purpose.

With his theme chosen for him and his material ready to hand Shakespeare set to work, and it must be granted that in all that has been considered so far, the charge we are examining—namely, that the greatest English dramatist prostituted his genius in the interests of mere race-prejudice — seems to receive confirmation. But let us look at the play itself, for the play, after all, is the thing. Not by his intention, but by the result must Shakespeare be judged. Did his plan work out as he intended?

For the Elizabethan audiences who first saw it, and who were presumably so blinded by prejudice that, in any event, they would have seen in the play only what they wanted to see, yes. For those who teach the play to-day with little more than a nodding acquaintance with it and no disposition to look beneath the surface, yes. Even perhaps for Shakespeare himself, yes: that is to say, he may not have realised what he did to the character of Shylock any more than Milton realised what he had done to the character of Satan in Paradise Lost. But for those who see the play as it really is, no. And the play as it really is, is the play as it is read and pondered over, not as it is presented on the stage, for The Merchant of Venice only possesses dramatic unity when a certain amount of violence has been done to it as it stands—i.e., when certain parts of it are deliberately played down.

When Shakespeare actually began work on the material he had chosen, his genius took fire and in his hands Shylock became, not the Aunt Sally for our jeers that he aimed at, but a deeply-wronged man, driven, it is true, in the second half of the play, by a passion for revenge, but a passion we can understand and sympathise with. In Shylock we see—we Gentiles at whose hisses rather than at whose compassion the dramatist is supposed to be aiming—not someone poles apart from ourselves, but one whom we ourselves might have been; a figure for tragedy rather than for comedy.

In a word, so far from contributing to hatred of the Jews, Shakespeare really contributed to his contemporaries'—and to our—understanding of them. And he did this because, when he really got to grips with his material, when he faced the problem of making these story-book characters credible on the stage, his artistry, his sincerity and his essential humaneness triumphed over his miserable first intentions.

Space forbids a detailed amplification of this contention, and, in any event, nothing but a re-reading of the play can test the validity of it, but some of the more obvious points may be noticed.

Consider the personal character of the people with whom Shylock has to deal. If Shylock is to be a villain of deepest dye, then they ought to be all virtue and attractiveness. The better the people upon whom he perpetrates his schemes, the viler will Shylock appear to be; besides, our sympathies are supposed to be with them, not with him, and they, therefore, should be admirable. But Shakespeare, the artist, saw at once that if Shylock were to behave like a monster there must be a monstrous cause for it. Otherwise, he would be simply incredible.

Prejudice might say that Jewish blood was sufficient explanation, but Shakespeare—yes, even in that age and at that time—knew differently. Thus it turns out that Shylock's antagonists and proposed victims are by no means the admirable people you would expect. As Quiller-Couch sayss: "They are as heartless as Shylock, without any of Shylock's passionate excuse."

Of the lesser characters, Solario and Solanio are self-confessed materialists of the crudest sort, whilst Gratiano is simply odious. Lorenzo is an unscrupulous adventurer, and Jessica, Shylock's daughter, with whom he elopes, is a thoroughly unprincipled and heartless piece of goods, delighting in robbing her father and more concerned about the cut of her figure in boy's clothes than any grief of his.

Bassanio is the kind of man who borrows money in order to go heiress-hunting and who seems to have no knowledge of the decencies of public behaviour. Antonio is obviously cast for the part of a thoroughly friendly and pleasant fellow, but he talks like a prig and stoops to borrow money from a man whom in the next breath he roundly despises. Even Portia can talk about mercy as eloquently as you please, and, within five minutes, behave as if she had a heart of stone.

These then, as things turn out, are the supposed foils to Shylock. There cannot be a great deal to fear from the comparison! But Shylock had to be hounded so that he became a man with but one idea—revenge, and, of course, the people who have to do the hounding suffer in the process.

Consider the character of Shylock himself. It is surely a token of Shakespeare's sympathy with him that the noblest language in the play is more often on his lips than any others'. Really, there are two Shylocks. There is the Shylock the audience expected and whom Shakespeare set out to portray—the one who can make the speech beginning: "How like a fawning publican he looks . . ." and who, according to Salanio, can bewail his vanished ducats more than his eloping daughter. And there is the Shylock who can answer Bassanio's tactless (and probably deliberately offensive) invitation to dinner with a firm statement of his religious principles; who can answer the contempt of his inferiors with the impassioned cry: "Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions?"

All the way through the play there is a criss-crossing of these two Shylocks, but, whatever an actor may make of the character—and he has my sympathy—the Shylock who dominates the imagination of the reader is the latter. With him our sympathies lie and, looking at the action from his point of view, what do we find? An honest and good-humoured attempt to arrive at better terms with the Gentiles, by the lending of money on nonsensical terms, is made an occasion of even greater scorn and contempt for himself and his race than before. Those whom he has thus helped cheerfully assist in the elopement of his daughter and in her robbing of him.

They mock at his grief thereafter and goad him almost to madness, so that he grasps quite naturally at the opportunity—the only opportunity—of revenge which presents itself, namely, the enforcing of the terms of a bond which originally had been a mere jest. In the court they defraud him of his revenge by a legal quibble which satisfies the reader almost as little as it satisfies him. And, finally, for his punishment, they inflict terms which are in any case immoral, and which, in that situation, are callous in the extreme.

He must make over half his goods eventually to the son-in-law and daughter who used him so ill (and who have shown no sign of contrition or even of consciousness of wrong-doing) and he must go through the what can be no more than the outward formality of becoming a Christian—a demand which does less credit to those who made it than to the broken man who was forced to submit to it.

Reading the play in this way, is it too much to claim that Shakespeare—whatever may have been his intentions—succeeds only in arousing sympathy for Shylock,

The New Year Is Unique With Tasks And Duties

BY SAMUEL BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, NATIONAL PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

As it approaches the solemn days which herald the New Year, Canadian Jewry again rededicates itself to the tasks and duties to which, as an organized body, it stands pledged. These include the maintenance of the high level of Jewish participation in all that contributes to the progress of our country; the strengthening of our cultural and educational institutions; the support of the needy and the afflicted in our midst; and the preserving of harmonious relations between our various ethnic groups. These, the constant objectives of Canadian Jewry, this year, as every year, challenge past endeavor to excel itself.

The coming year, however, beckons with a challenge unique in our annals. A short time ago Canadian Jewry crowned with completion that growing tendency towards an all-embracing unity which has marked our organizational life during the past decade; a decision was reached to unite in one great drive the welfare campaigns, the Combined Jewish Appeal, and the United Israel Appeal.

Superfluous it is to point out, at this time, the pressing needs which the First Joint Campaign, to be launched in the opening months of the year, is designed to meet. Although the State of Israel is now in its third year, the task of the Ingathering is far from having been completed. Hundreds of thousands of Jews still wait for rescue and sanctuary. Indeed, in March of this year Canadian Jewry, meeting in Montreal in extraordinary session, pledged itself to participation in a plan which would involve a three-year effort to redeem from continuing homelessness and oppression a total of 600,000 Jews. It is the first instalment of this emergency rescue — battling in many areas against deadlines — which now, across the threshold of the New Year, challenges the zeal and devotion of Canadian Jewry.

Both as President of the Canadian Jewish Congress, and as having presided over the various assemblies at which these momentous decisions were taken, I have no doubt but that Canadian Jewry will again respond, as it has in past years, to the urgent cries for help which reach us from the farflung continents. In this it will be moved by various considerations, by warm humanitarianism which urges the redemption of these thousands still languishing in many kinds of bondage; by pride in the State of Israel, which, having been attained, calls now to be maintained with increasing strength and resource; and by democratic loyalty which enjoins the creation in that old-new land of a bastion and stronghold of democracy. In the accomplishment of these tasks lies not a little of the happiness which all so earnestly desire from the promise of the New Year.

A NEW YEAR MESSAGE FROM ISRAEL

BY DR. CHAIM WEIZMANN, PRESIDENT OF ISRAEL

"I should like to send a heartfelt message of New Year greetings and good cheer to all the citizens of Israel and to Jews near and far. A significant year in the new history of our people is drawing to a close. Great strides have been made in the consolidation of our democratic commonwealth, in the development of our country, in the absorption and integration of many thousands of newcomers. Education, health, and social services have been greatly expanded. We have had to struggle hard, but the test has only strengthened our fibre.

In this great effort of reconstruction and rehabilitation we have been upheld by the unstinted support extended us by the great Jewish communities abroad. At this turn of the year, our heart goes out to them in deep gratitude. They have written a grand new chapter in the timeless record of Jewish brotherhood and selfless service.

The coming year will not diminish our responsibilities. It is likely greatly to increase them. We shall keep the doors of our country open to immigrants and refugees from near and far. We shall strive to expand our economic structure to provide them not merely with refuge but with a real home. As hitherto, the entire social and political regime of Israel will subserve that major purpose. That will entail heavy sacrifice, but there is no easy road to the high aim which we have set for ourselves. Freedom is a hard taskmaster, but the reward of all these efforts and sacrifices will assuredly come.

I pray that the coming year may be one of peace for Israel and the whole Jewish people and for humanity at large. May God's blessing rest on the work of our hands. May our generation be found worthy of the great chance that has been granted to us. And may our effort of peaceful reconstruction redound to the benefit of the whole house of Israel, to the prosperity and security of all Mankind.

A NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE

BY ALLAN BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, NATIONAL PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN FRIENDS OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY

The Jewish people can look forward to the year 5712 as a year in which further gigantic strides must and will be made, swelling the list of earlier achievements and building greater the pride in that which has been done thus far. Israel's Hebrew University, a beacon to our people's progress, reinforces its academic merit by its vital links with the Jewish community. Confronting the University and Israel, yes, and all Jews, is the question, "Does the Hebrew system of thought possess the strength to create a single, consistent national culture out of the many divergent elements of which modern society in Israel is composed?"

Scores of different cultural backgrounds, dozens of linguistic origins, hosts of barriers which divide the immigrants of Europe from those of the Orient by thousands of miles and the experience of hundreds of years — all this has to be bridged, fused into a single distinctive civilization, revealing an underlying identity and yet not sacrificing the differences which lend colour and richness to the pattern. So much attention has been focused on Israel as a political and military phenomenon that insufficient interest has been shown in what, without doubt, is the greatest cultural and educational adventure of our time. It is a great and formidable task, for the organism being absorbed is bigger than the original organism which is doing the absorbing.

And so, clearly the Hebrew University, dealing as it does with the problems of the hard-to-absorb immigrant, is not an ivory tower above the tumult and beyond the problems of daily life. No! The tasks of higher education in Israel are not limited by the idea and the ideal of learning for the sake of pure knowledge. The uncovering, for example, of unexpected mineral resources by the University's men and women of science comprises a significant role, but of even greater importance is the development of a highly-trained, scentifically-minded population as Israel's chief raw material.

And because the matter of higher learning in Israel is not a marginal or incidental problem, remote from things of first concern, and because the Hebrew University lies at the very heart of state building, those who sustain this cause are not adding some decorative ornament to the edifice of Israel's life. They are digging deep into the soil and helping to consolidate the Jewish State at its very foundations.

Our people the world over have every reason to be proud of the great strides made by Israel and its institutions in three short years, for have Jews not started this work of dignity and promise, solidly and well? Has not, for example, Israel's University, the Hebrew University, begun to revive, in a few brief years, Jewish culture and law, to create a science and medicine and Jewish scientists, a modern leadership for a modern state in a modern world? Have not these leaders, without a pause from their consuming efforts to win and mould a nation, already given much to a wanting world, not merely to Jews?

World Jewry whose vital interests are, in this fashion, being so well-tended, will and must see the need for substantial interest in and material support for an institution as significant as is the Hebrew University to the Jewish future. I urge such support with the conviction that neglect of such an institution as the Hebrew University, and failure to contribute fully its signifance to generations succeeding us, will result in the despoiling of our destiny, a destiny of intense vigor and enormous capacity on behalf of a fuller life for all.

that is to say, in those who are prepared to see the play as it is and put on one side their own prejudices, whether they be against Jews or against Jew-baiters? I think not. And yet the idea that Shylock is a stereotype has itself become such a stereotype that there may be little hope that justice will be done to Shakespeare in this matter. Still, if the patient reader has been moved to look at the play itself, and to consider the question again, something may have been achieved.
